Stalin Calls for Complete Soviet Victory

SEES FREEING OF ALL SOVIET FROM GERMANS

Declares Stern Struggle Lies Ahead as He Sets New Goals For Army, Workers.

SILENT ON DETAILS

MacArthur Praises Military Achievement In Message of Congratulation.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — Manifesting deep confidence to millions of Russians joyfully celebrating the Red army's 24th anniversary, Premier Joseph Stalin called today for "complete victory" in a "war of liberation" against Germany, set larger goals for workers supplying the advancing army, and soberly warned the Soviet union that it still faced a tremendous and hard fight.

The enemy, Stalin declared in a memorable order of the day to the Red army, "is not yet beaten and a stern struggle is ahead of us."

But he made this pledge:

"We shall throw the enemy from the gates of Leningrad and liberate White Russia, the Ukraine and the Crimea.

"The Red banner will fly everywhere it has flown before . . . I wish you complete victory over the German-Fascist invaders. . . . Forward!"

The Russians—and the world, too—had anticipated eagerly the 24th anniversary of the creation of the army which threw back the Hitlerite forces in the deep snows of the western front. They had expected that widespread liberation of Soviet soil from the Germans would be announced, but the morning hours passed in Moscow without anything more specific than the midnight communique, which merely repeated generalities that the Red army "advanced and took several occupied places."

Stalin, on whose direct order the counter-offensive began last fall, dealt only generally with the

BACK ON JOB

Fire Captain Says City Turned Down Resignation.

Capt. Paul G. Young, member of the Mansfield fire department for the past 23 years, who announced Friday that he was retiring from service, said today that his resignation had not been accepted and that he had returned to work.

Young said that Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton declined to accept the resignation and had asked him to reconsider his decision.

Young had intended to have his resignation take effect on March 1 but at the same time took off time for his annual vacation.

Young returned to duty yesterday but was off today in accordance with the department's practice of having firemen work every other day.

SIGNS MEASURE

Roosevelt Approves Bill That Gives OCD $100,000,000.

WASHINGTON — (U P) — President Roosevelt today signed a $163,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill providing $100,000,000 for the embattled office of civilian defense.

The measure bars use of the OCD funds for dancing or other forms of public entertainment. The restrictions were written in as a result of the widespread criticism which developed after appointment of rhythmic dancer Mayris Chaney, who later resigned, and screen actor Melvyn Douglas to OCD posts.

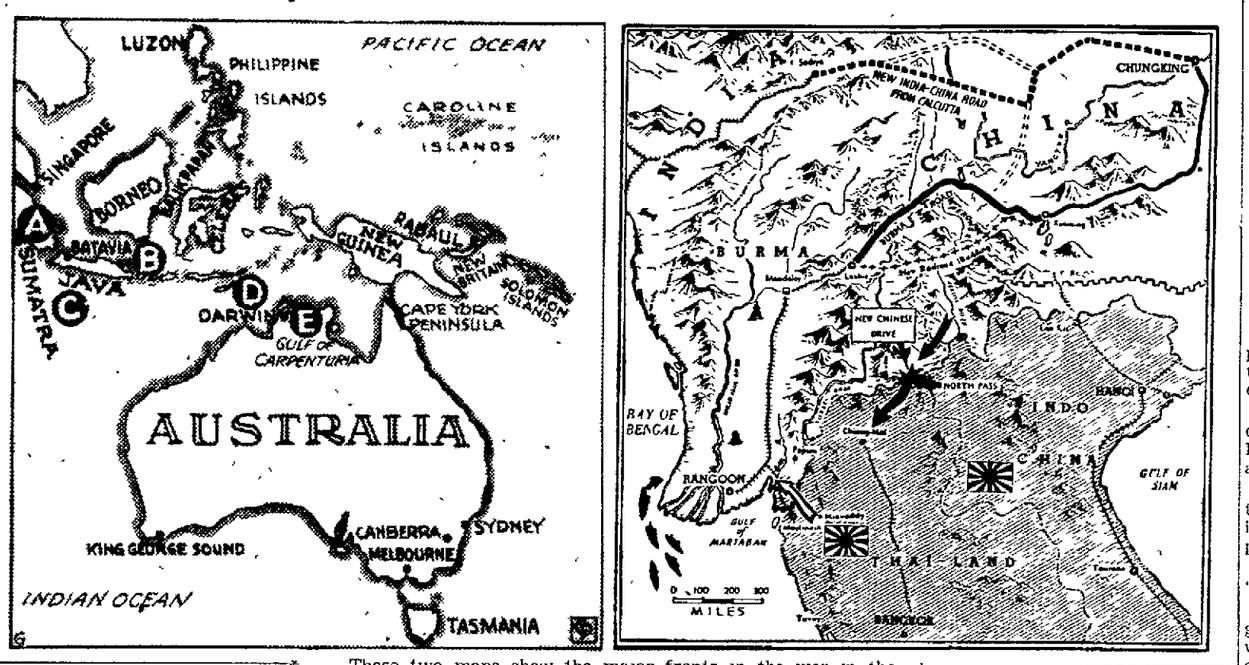
Two Major Fronts of War In the Far East



These two maps show the major fronts in the war in the Far East. At the left, the battle for Java, in which the United nations are striking their hardest blows. The Japanese are seeking to advance on Java (C) from bases in Sumatra (A) and Bali (B). Meanwhile, the Australian naval base of Darwin (D) is threatened by the Jap occupation of the Portuguese island of Timor (E). At right, British and imperial forces are battling desperately to stem a Jap drive on the Burma road, main supply to China. Broken line shows the alternate road for supplies, to be landed at Calcutta instead of Rangoon.

TELLS NATION HOW WAR GOES

President Will Report on Ebb and Flow of Battles In Address Tonight.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt will report to the American people in plain language tonight on the progress of the titanic struggle which they must fight and how the ebb and flow of battles thousands of miles away affect even the remotest country towns here.

In his radio address at 10 p. m., Eastern war time, he also is expected to outline in a general way American efforts to keep the enemy at bay until war production and trained fighting manpower permit counter-offensives on many world fronts.

Mr. Roosevelt devoted much of his week-end to work on the speech, giving considerable time to analyses of the latest information from the army and navy, from members of the United Nations, and from other intelligence sources.

The address tonight will be his third major broadcast since the wars start. The first was on Dec. 9, two days after Japan struck at Pearl Harbor. The second was on Jan. 7 when he reported to congress on the state of the union.

In the meanwhile the Rising Sun flag of Japan has swept on from one spectacular triumph to another in the Pacific, until now the enemy has all but overrun the Dutch East Indies and is hammering at the backdoor to Australia.

The German submarine fleet has brought ruthless seawar to the

LABOR INVESTS

Green Promises Purchase of Billion Dollars in War Securities.

WASHINGTON — (U P) — The American Federation of Labor today began its "labor invests in victory" week with a pledge to purchase $1,000,000,000 in defense stamps and bonds this year.

The pledge, largest received by the treasury department from any single organization, was given to Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., by AFL President William Green.

March 17—Big Day for More Than the Irish!

Draft Lottery (With Green Capsules) Set For St. Patrick's Day; 5,000 In County To Get Numbers.

Nearly 5,000 Richland county men and 9,000,000 throughout the nation who registered a week ago under the selective service act will receive their order numbers March 17 in the first wartime draft lottery in Washington in 24 years. The numbers will be drawn on St. Patrick's day from green capsules.

The historic goldfish bowl will be used again for drawing the numbers that will determine the order in which the new registrants—men between the ages of 20 and 45—will be classified and called into service. Draft officials said between 8,000 and 9,000 capsules will be drawn from the bowl.

Meanwhile, the county draft boards will assign serial numbers to the new registrants on March 9 after shuffling the new registration cards. Each of the three boards will start with No. 1 and assign a number to all of the 5,000 registrants who signed up Feb. 14, 15 and 16.

The prefix T will be placed before each of the new serial numbers to indicate the registrant belongs to the third registration group. The serial numbers will be posted at draft board headquarters after March 9, but they will not be mailed to the registrants.

The serial number will be valuable to the registrant only until order numbers are drawn in the national lottery. A registrant holding serial No. 1 may get order No. T-1600 in Richland county if

Pays Tribute To Old Church, Thanks Community In Sermon

A touching tribute to the stately old First Congregational church, which was destroyed in last Tuesday's disastrous fire, and a message of appreciation to the community for the kindnesses extended to his congregation, were offered by Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the church, in his sermon yesterday morning.

Rev. Young delivered the Sunday morning sermon at the First Presbyterian church, where his congregation joined with the Presbyterian congregation at its regular services. Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the host church, presided at the services, which were attended by approximately 800 persons.

Rev. Young told of the many expressions of sympathy he had received since the loss of the church building, the many letters from residents of the city who told how much the building had meant to them.

He recounted his first visit after the fire to the ruins of his study in the building. He found his desk black and burned, but

600 At Mt. Gilead Adopt Five-Point Plan to Help Win War.

MT. GILEAD—The "plain people" of Morrow county—mechanics, barbers, lawyers, farmers, housewives, teachers and clerks—embarked today on a five-point "production now!" program to show America the way to "offensive action instead of defensive action."

Claude Shelton, a Morrow county farmer who says he can produce "enough potatoes to feed 10,000 soldiers a year" if he can keep his help down on the farm, enthusiastically welcomed the "production now" program, a cooperative plan designed to aid agriculture, business and industry combat labor shortage.

"We're tired of shilly-shallying," he said. "Now we can begin offensive action instead of defensive action."

F. O. Van Sickel, of Cardington, was chosen as chairman, F. H. Kirkpatrick, of Mt. Gilead, vice chairman, and Mrs. Leonard Wilson, Mt. Gilead, secretary, of a committee of three to begin work immediately on these major points:

The Future Farmers of America organization will begin a survey of available tractors and combines in the county. A machine map will be drawn up so that farmers will know immediately when one is available. Farmers will not have to go 20

5 INJURED IN TWO-CAR CRASH

Mansfield Area Escapes Traffic Fatalities, But State Toll For Week-End's 14.

The Mansfield area contributed nothing to the state's week-end traffic record of 14 deaths but five persons were injured one critically, in a head-on collision of two automobiles last night on Park avenue west, just east of the city limits.

Mrs. Amy Crider, 63, Galion, R. D. 3, suffered a fractured rib and a puncture of her right lung when the auto in which she was riding figured in a collision with another at the entrance to a service station near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad subway. Hospital authorities said her condition was poor.

Cars driven by Walter Crider, Galion R. D. 3, and Lewis Fellenbaum, Crestline, collided when Crider attempted to make a left turn into the service station. Mansfield police said that Fellenbaum's car skidded approximately 50 feet as he attempted to avoid the collision.

Max Enderle, 32, Galion R. D. 3, a passenger in the Crider car, received a fractured right clavicle and a possible vertebrae injury. Crider escaped with cuts and bruises.

Fellenbaum, driver of the other car, and two passengers, Mrs.

General Hospital Maternity Ward Quarantine Ends

Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced that the quarantine on the maternity ward of General hospital, imposed on Feb. 12, when scarlet fever was found, had been lifted.

Dr. Wild said that hospital authorities had reported that the ward had been fumigated, cleaned and painted and he announced that it would be re-opened for use tomorrow at 7 a. m.

One new diphtheria case was reported from the northern part of the county. Three new cases were reported in the city on Saturday with all three cases in the same family. Only five cases have been reported in the county since Jan. 1. None of these cases, however, had any connection with the hospital.

The health commissioner said that reports had not been received as yet on test cultures made of school children in schools where the children from the family had attended. The tests are being made by General hospital authorities and by state officials at Columbus.

Wild said that three children were being kept out of school until a report is made on the tests to determine if they had contracted diphtheria.

NAVY FORCED TO SINK CRAFT AFTER ATTACK

Cutter Capsizes While Being Towed to Port; Loss of Life Moderate.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy department today announced that the coast guard had lost its first cutter to the enemy.

In a communique the navy disclosed that the cutter Alexander Hamilton had been torpedoed by an enemy submarine off Iceland.

The navy was forced to sink the vessel by gunfire later when it capsized while being towed to port.

The navy said that loss of life "was moderate."

Details of the sinking were not given to the navy communique nor was it said when the attack occurred.

The Alexander Hamilton, the U. S. coast guard said, was built in 1937 at New York. The vessel had a capacity of 2,141 gross tons, was 327 feet long and 41 feet in the beam.

The boat carried a couple of five inch guns and anti-aircraft battery. Its cruising radius was 8,000 miles and at a speed of 11 knots it could travel 12,300 miles, according to navy statistics.

Sinking of the Alexander Hamilton marked the fifth naval vessel attacked in the Atlantic.

Text of the navy's 47th communique of the war follows:

"Atlantic area: The coast guard cutter Alexander Hamilton was torpedoed by an enemy submarine off Iceland.

"While being towed into port the ship capsized and had to be sunk by gunfire.

Loss of personnel which occurred when the ship was torpedoed was moderate.

"Next of kin of those lost have been notified.

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

Coast guard headquarters said the wartime complement of the Alexander Hamilton was 202 men. Its peacetime complement was 112 men.

The Alexander Hamilton was the first United States combatant vessel reported lost in the vicinity of Iceland since the United States declared war.

HEADS CHURCH

Archbishop of York Named Primate of All England.

LONDON — (INS) — The new Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England is the 60-year-old archbishop of York, the Most Rev. Dr. William Temple, whose father held the same post.

Announcement of the successor to Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, who resigned a month ago, was made early today at No. 10 Downing street.

Doctor Lang, who was 77 years old, resigned to "make way for a younger man" who could prepare the Church of England for post-war reconstruction tasks.

The new Archbishop of York will be the Right Rev. Cyril Foster Garbett, 69, bishop of Winchester. His father was Bishop Exeter, and from 1896 to 1903 he was the Archbishop of Canterbury—the last in the reign of Queen Victoria. So as a youth the new archbishop lived in Lambeth castle to which he now returns as master.

Cleveland Work Holiday Hits U. S. War Production.

CLEVELAND— (U P) —A "work holiday" at the Monarch Aluminum company by 100 members of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union (CIO) curtailed war production today.

Union District Director Alex Balint said the work stoppage was not a strike but "a work holiday" called by the union for the purpose of deciding action "on the company's refusal to recognize the union as bargaining agent, and to discuss layoffs instituted out of the order of seniority."

Invasion Fleet Wiped Out By Allied Forces

Only One Ship Escapes As Enemy Tries To Get Reinforcements To Men On Island Near Java; Japanese Capture Pasar Airdrome.

(By United Press)

BATAVIA, Java—(By Telephone)—The Japanese invasion fleet which attacked Bali has been virtually wiped out by an Allied attack in which United States bombing planes and Dutch warships took part, it was announced officially today.

Only one Japanese ship in the invasion fleet escaped and it fled, leaving the Japanese troops on Bali island without warship or transport support. The remainder of the ships were sunk or damaged.

The Netherlands Indies government hailed the action as a victory second in importance only to the battle of Macassair strait, but admitted that the Japanese had overrun part of Bali and had captured the Pasar airdrome on the island.

But it was asserted officially that the Japanese had paid dearly for their invasion of the beautiful island of Bali.

A special statement issued by the government and a supplementary communique of the Netherlands Indies armed forces said it could be assumed that "the fleet which the Japanese sent out for the conquest of Bali has been for the greater part destroyed or badly damaged."

The battle of Bali began last Thursday when the Japanese landed on the little island, one mile east of Java, under heavy attack by American flying fortresses, Liberator bombers and dive bombers and at least half a dozen Allied destroyers. Dutch cruisers and destroyers and airplanes joined in the attack on the enemy.

At least 19 enemy ships, including five cruisers and four destroyers, were damaged or sunk, and the total may have been as high as 32, according to various communiques. The official statements, however, were duplicating at some points and the exact toll was uncertain. But it was a clear-cut air-naval victory for the Allies.

The Japanese succeeded, however, in landing strong forces on Bali.

News of the Allied victory was circulated rapidly through Batavia, and it served to bolster morale at a moment when heavy Japanese air raids on Java were believed to be the opening move for a direct attack on this island.

The regular Netherlands Indies command communique reported that Netherlands planes had attacked the Japanese invasion area of Palembang in Sumatra and said that three to four Japanese planes had been shot down.

The communique reported Japanese aerial attacks throughout Sunday. Enemy planes bombed and machine-gunned airports in Java in the areas of Batavia, Buitzenzorg, Soerabaja and Malang.

It admitted that some damage had been done but said casualties were light and that three to four of 22 attacking planes were downed.

The Netherlands air force raid on the Palembang area "produced satisfactory results," it was said.

The communique noted the Japanese landing in the Netherlands area of Timor island but

LULL: Fighting Dies Down On Batan As Japs Cease Shelling

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Japan's threatened all-out offensive in the Philippines appeared to be stalled today when an army communique reported that fighting "has died down," on land and in the air.

It was the third time in recent weeks that the Japanese, with 10 to one superiority in manpower and squadrons of dive-bombers virtually unchallenged in the sky, had wound up for an attempted "knockout" assault only to be stopped in their tracks.

In heavy fighting during the last 10 days the Japanese—moving up heavy reinforcements of men and guns to the Batan lines—had sought to find a "soft spot" in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's positions.

Today's war communique, describing reports received up to 9:30 a. m. EWT., said that "fighting has died down on all fronts on Luzon. . . . There was practically no enemy air or ground activity in Batan during the past 24 hours."

Despite the sudden calm, military observers believed that the Japanese might be regrouping their forces after the heavy battering they have taken from MacArthur during the past week and that the danger of an enemy all-out assault remained great.

The shelling of the U. S. forts dominating the entrance to Manila bay by Japanese batteries—intermittent for several days—also has ceased, the communique reported.

Japanese guns on the Cavite shore of the base, around the former base of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, had hurled tons of shells at Fort Mills on Corregidor. Drum,

PREDICTION: India Freedom Hinted In Cabinet Shake-Up

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Predictions that India may soon be offered a "large measure" of self-government came from informed British political quarters today after Prime Minister Winston Churchill sweepingly reorganized his cabinet for the second time in four days.

Six key cabinet posts changed hands. Sir James Grigg, former permanent undersecretary for war, was named war secretary, replacing Capt. David Margesson.

Col. John J. Llewellin was elevated from his role as president of the board of trade to the more important post of minister of aircraft production, succeeding J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon. Hugh Dalton became president of the board of trade and his former post as minister of economic warfare was filled by Lord Wolmer.

Viscount Cranborne, considered one of Britain's most brilliant diplomats, succeeded Lord Moyne as colonial secretary, a position now assuming vital importance in the light of Japan's assaults against the British colonial empire.

Lord Portal, a well known English business man, was named minister of works and buildings, replacing Lord Reith.

Five men were dropped from the cabinet, Moore-Brabazon, Margesson, Lords Moyne and Reith, and Laborite Arthur Greenwood, whose position as minister without portfolio was left vacant. The new shake-up followed last Thursday's reorganization of the war cabinet, which then was reduced from nine to seven men.

None of the latest changes will said that the Japanese were meeting strong resistance.

Netherlands forces were reported fighting strongly also in Sumatra and Bali.

A Netherlands command communique announced the destruction of from eight to 10 Japanese fighter and bomber planes yesterday by Dutch fighter planes which challenged Japanese attacking fleets over Bandoeng and a western Java airport.

Japs Continuing Advance In Burma

CALCUTTA — (UP) — Battered Japanese forces "kept coming" in Burma today, sweeping against imperial defense lines bent toward the Rangoon road to Mandalay.

The 35-mile plain between the Bilin and Sittang rivers was a battle ground radio Rangoon indicated. Imperial lines bulged toward the Sittang, only 15 miles due east by air of the railroad from Rangoon to Mandalay which is the start of the Burma road to China.

(Communications with Rangoon were bad, but a military commentator in London said there was no foundation, on the basis of available information, for Japanese claims that the railroad has been cut at Pegu. London sources expected the British to form a new line at the Sittang if they were forced to fall back.)

"Fighting continues in the Bilin-Sittang area," radio Rangoon said, "and our troops are continuing to inflict heavy casualties on the enemy."

Allied planes were smashing at the Japanese lines, "groundstrafing" and bombing the advanced positions.

"The RAF is giving very active, powerful support," it was said.

Japanese bombers attacked Maymyo, on the Mandalay-Lashio railroad link of the Burma road and there were air raid alerts in other central Burma towns "without incident." (London said it had reports that Basseun and Mammenil had been bombed "recently.")

American volunteer airmen battled Japanese planes again on the Bilin-Sittang front, shooting down three and probably five

Ground fighting on the southern front was in progress near the instep of a roughly-shaped "shoe" of land west of the Salween river. There Japanese have been advancing northwestward up the high heel from Martaban on the Salween estuary.

U. S. Fliers Win Respect of Dutch

BATAVIA — (INS) — United States aviators have won the respect of their Dutch comrades for their exploits in the battle of the East Indies

The Americans have won a high reputation as bombing experts through their feats in the Straits of Macassar, off South Sumatra and Bali

"These Americans are formidable foes to come up against when they're operating in the giant Boeing flying fortresses," one Netherland air officer told the Aneta news agency. "I would hate to be on a ship which was the target of American low-altitude bombing"

American, British and Australian fighter pilots have gained considerable experience in the first months of the Pacific war and they are confident they can outstrip Japanese airmen, given equal material.

"Three hundred good fighters could turn the scales completely in favor of the Allies," one American said.

Allied Bombers Attack Jap Ships

BATAVIA, N. E. I.—(AP)—A Japanese merchant ship of more than 10,000 tons was set afire and other ships were machine-gunned in a new raid by Allied bombers on Banka strait off Sumatra the United Nations headquarters announced today

The ships were attacked by dive bombers, a United Nations communique said of the action roughly 250 miles northwest of Batavia.

Roosevelt Asks Half Billion For Army Equipment

WASHINGTON—The steadily increasing expansion of the American armed forces was emphasized today when President Roosevelt asked congress to make available immediately an additional appropriation of $596,836,000 for clothing and equippage for the army.

In a supplemental budget message, the president asked the senate appropriations committee to attach this emergency money to the $32,070,901,000 military funds bill previously passed by the house and scheduled for committee approval today.

Addition of this amount would boost to a record-breaking total of $1,525,764,000 the appropriations to be made available in this one measure for clothing and equipping the nation's soldiers.

Speedy senate passage of the mammoth military bill, carrying more than $23,000,000,000 for the war department, $5,430,000,000 for lease-lend activities and $3,852,000,000 to accelerate the merchant ship construction program, seemed likely, to point up a busy week in congress

The AFL workers were captured at Wake and Guam where they were engaged in construction work for the army and navy.

CIO President Philip Murray announced that shipment of the "bundles" was being arranged through the International Red Cross.

First Alfred Turner saved them by swimming to their aid and holding them up until two other youths came along in a rowboat and picked up all three

The girls were just congratulating themselves on their luck when the rescue craft overturned and in they went again Another boat picked up all five, however, and that's that.

1942 LICENSE PLATES—NINE TONS OF 'EM—ARRIVE IN CITY

Nine tons of automobile license plates arrived in Mansfield last Saturday for sale in Richland county beginning next Monday, Jack Berger, Mansfield deputy registrar, said this morning

Shipped from Columbus the plates for the county this year number 20,878, just 1,398 less than last year.

Berger said that although sales during the early part of the year were not expected to drop, state officials had predicted that fewer plates will be sold in July the time of the first quarter reduction.

During past years, he explained, many plates were sold to "summer drivers," but this year tire shortages are expected to curtail driving generally.

Prices for the tags will be the same this year as in the past.

Motorists may put their new plates—white with green numerals—on their cars as soon as they are purchased instead of waiting until March 10 as in the past. Last day 1941 tags may be used is April 1.

Sales in Mansfield will be conducted at the Richland County Automobile club office at 66 North Mulberry street This year, for the first time, farm truck plates may be purchased at this office. In the past they were ordered from Columbus

Plates to be sold from the Mansfield office include series, VU, VV, VW,VX, VY, VZ and WA to WK. Of these the VU, VV and VW series will be reserved for members of the auto club

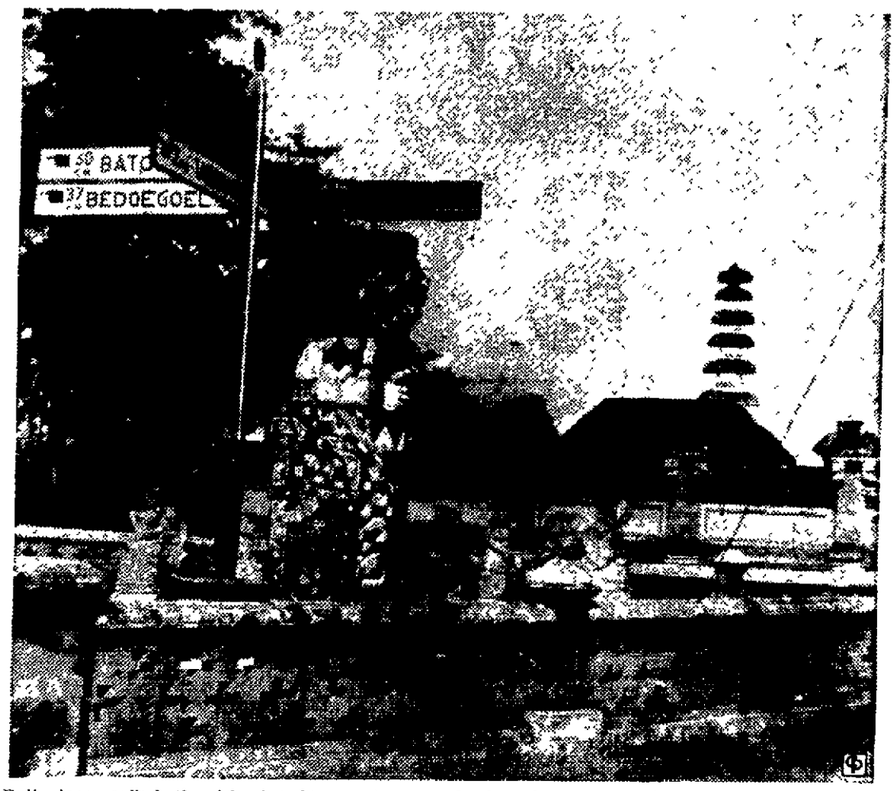
Bali, Island Paradise, Target Of Jap Attacks



Bali, long called the island paradise of the Dutch East Indies, is the latest target of the Japanese invasion attacks. Strong Japanese landing forces are said to have invaded the island, which lies but one mile east of Java, main island base of the United Nations. military field as the German-Russian war went into its ninth month.

He said the enemy was defeated at Tikhvin and Rostov, in the Crimea and before Moscow; that the Moscow and Tula areas had been cleared of the enemy, and the war would be different now that the element of surprise which formed the German reserve stock of power had been spent.

The Germans, Stalin said, have allies fighting beside them while "so far we have not been in that position."

While the Soviets have held their own and eventually will win, the premier-defense commissar said "it would be unlike the Soviet people to delude themselves into the belief that the enemy has already been beaten."

Then he laid down this general policy for coming months:

"New units must be sent to the front to forge victory.

"Industry must work with redoubled vigor.

"The army must receive every day more and more tanks, aircraft, guns, machine guns and other arms.

"Therein lies the strength of the Red army. But the strength of the Red army lies not only in this. Above all it lies in the fact it is fighting a national war of liberation and not an imperialistic war of aggression."

What appeared to be an invitation to the German people to overthrow Hitler was voiced by the Russian leader.

He denounced as "a wicked, foolish libel" statements which he said appeared in the foreign press that the Red army aimed at the destruction of the German people

"It is probable," he said "that this war will bring about the end of Hitler's clique. We would welcome this situation But it would be ridiculous to identify Hitler's clique with the German people and the German state.

"History teaches that Hitlers come and go but the German people and the German state remain."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent congratulations from his beleaguered positions on Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

The United States general declared that never in his experience in a number of wars and in his study of other conflicts had he observed "such effective resistance to the heaviest blows of a hitherto undefeated enemy, followed by a smashing counter-attack which is driving the enemy back to his own land.

"The scale and grandeur of this effort marks it as the greatest military achievement in all history."

General MacArthur says the world situation at the present time indicates that the hopes of civilization rest on the worthy banners of the courageous Russian army."

inside, intact, he found 25 of his sermons, some notes, and three partially-burned books.

He took occasion in the course of his sermon to make reference to the Mansfield News-Journal.

"I wonder if we really appreciate," he said, "the value of a community newspaper. It helped immensely this past week, to weld us into a brotherhood of kindred hearts, whose high aim is to build that city of alabaster walls, undimmed by human tears. Our newspaper, with a church fire as a text for its stories and editorials, made the entire community more church-conscious than it probably ever was before, at any given time. Through the priceless medium of a free press, we have been helped in all of this"

Using as his text, "More Stately Mansions," he pointed to the great importance of the church in the community. There have been cities without schools, without palaces, without armories, but never a city without its place of prayer, he said.

Concluding with a plea that all people make their church homes more useful, Rev. Young said:

"The House of God, the place where His glory dwelleth, is a place that can truly be of service to your restless, finite spirits. The man of many troubles steps into a wayside chapel off the glare of the street, kneels for an instant, sits quietly for a few minutes, and goes out stilled, collected and reinforced — a 'More Stately Mansion' before God and man.

"It is for this reason, essentially, that we of the First Congregational church loved our old church building so much. We used to come out of that restful and inspiring sanctuary quieter than we went in. Even our children, who were not given to speaking softly, whispered when they were in it. For there we found the presence of that Infinite Spirit, who lives to bless us all."

Rev. Young received offers from 11 churches and institutions to use their building facilities until permanent arrangements are made for a new meeting-place. The church cabinet will discuss the matter at its meeting tomorrow evening at Rev. Young's home. SUNDAY ROLLER SKATING BANNED

East Liverpool Mayor Approves Latest Blue Law.

EAST LIVERPOOL—(UP)—Sunday roller skaters, like Sunday bowlers will have to find new sources of week-end amusement in East Liverpool.

Mayor O. Earl Greenawalt said today he will approve an ordinance passed by the city council banning Sunday roller skating. The ordinance, submitted by Councilman-at-Large Harry Wilson, was approved unanimously by the seven-man council.

The council already has banned operation of bowling alleys on Sunday but permits operation of moving picture theaters and taverns on Sunday.

Opposition Party In Uruguay Hears Chief Will Leave Country.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — (AP) —Opponents of President Alfredo Baldomir, who dissolved the Uruguayan congress Saturday and called off a national election set for March 29 were left virtually leaderless today by Senator Luis Alberto Herrera's decision to leave the country voluntarily.

Herrera, head of the opposition party and chief critic of President Baldomir's policy of cooperation with the United States, said he would depart this week for Argentina and remain there in self-imposed exile.

FIGHTING DIES DOWN ON BATAN, ARMY REPORTS

Japs Fail To Make Good In Third "Wind-Up" For Knockout Blow.

Frank and Hughes in an effort to silence them.

Today's communique carried the announcement that President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth, whose government still is carrying on "somewhere in the Philippines," has awarded the commonwealth's Distinguished Service star to two right-hand generals of MacArthur.

The awards, highest of the commonwealth, went to Maj. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland and Brig. Gen. Richard J. Marshall in recognition of their services in helping to "devise the original plans and methods for defense of the Philippines."

MacArthur meanwhile gave undying fame to a detachment of half-naked little Igorot tribesmen of Batan's jungle battlefront.

Wild warriors screaming like the savage head-hunters who were their fathers, they rode into the bloodiest battle of the Philippines perched atop careening American tanks and guided them through the jungle-growth by hammering on the steel sides with sticks.

When the combination of primitive fierceness and modern weapons had finished its job the 20th Japanese infantry regiment—1,200 to 1,500 men—had been "completely annihilated."

The mad charge of the Igorots was told belatedly in a war department communique packed with more drama than any to come out of the Philippines in 79 days of resistance by MacArthur's weary but determined little army of Americans and Filipinos.

It was a victory of revenge for the fate of 125 to 150 other Igorots who, a short time before, had "to a man . . . died in their foxholes without flinching or thought of retreat" while taking the blow of a new enemy offensive

(Dispatches from the Batan front indicated that the battle may have occurred on Feb 12.)

Here is the story in the unadorned but thrilling words of the war department communique, issued yesterday:

"The Igorots are a non-Christian tribe living in the Bontoc mountain region of Northern Luzon. They are an industrious, peace-loving people, but they are likewise absolutely fearless. As members of the army of the Philippine commonwealth they have proved to be excellent fighting men

"During the recent enemy offensive the 20th Japanese infantry regiment made an attack on a position held by a single Igorot company.

"To a man the Igorots died in their fox holes without flinching or thought of retreat, but exacting a tremendous toll from the Japanese.

"To restore the situation our high command ordered an immediate counter-attack by a tank unit supported by infantry The infantry soldiers were Igorots, eager to even the score for their lost tribesmen.

"The bamboo jungle and the heavy, irregular terrain of that section of the front were almost impenetrable and apparently made it impossible for the tanks to operate.

"However, the limitless resourcefulness, which is an outstanding characteristic of Gen. MacArthur's troops, immediately came into play.

"Without a word the Igorot commander hoisted his men to the tops of the tanks in order that they might guide the machines through the matted morass of underbrush, the thickets and the trees.

"The exposed Igorot soldier on top of the tank served as the eyes of the American driver.

"The guide signalled the driver with a stick, and with an automatic pistol fired continuously as the unit closed with the enemy."

coastal waters of the western hemisphere. Playing havoc with shipping from Canada to South America. Three powerful Nazi warships have run the gantlet of Dover strait to sheltered home harbors from which they may sally for future attacks on Atlantic convoys. And grave concern exists lest the remains of the French fleet fall at last into Axis hands.

The battle scoresheets of the United States and United Nations can show no such string of heartening successes.

Allied naval and air forces have inflicted some punishment on Japanese ships and planes in the South Pacific; units of the U. S. Pacific fleet carried out a successful raiding operation on Japanese bases in the Marshall and Gilbert islands, some submarine raiders have been destroyed off both coasts, and MacArthur's men have performed valiant prodigies in holding out on Bataan peninsula in the Philippines. But these few successes did not compensate for the many heavy reverses.

Such was the historical backdrop for the president's address tonight.

Listening with thousands of others will be Washington birthday diners at about 60 Democratic party gatherings throughout the country. Contributors to the party's campaign fund are invited to these functions, usually held on Jackson day early in January.

The International Association of Machinists local 1309 (AFL) will begin a defense bond-buying program with voluntary payroll deductions and will sponsor a speed-up plan at the county's only industry, the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company.

Housewives will undertake a census of available quarters for refugees in event of coastal bombings and will set up a county consumer information center.

A farm-labor board with representatives from each of the county's 16 townships will be appointed through which requests for farm help and skilled mechanics will be cleared.

A crew of "minute men" will be organized by Lawrence Weaver, Mt. Gilead grocer, so that when an emergency call for farm help is sent out, townsmen will go to the fields and work. They will accept the prevailing wages and the money then will be turned over to the Red Cross or into Defense bonds

Selective service headquarters indicated that the new set of order numbers will be added to the end of the present list so that men who registered last week will not be called for service until the present supply of eligible men is exhausted.

Army officials hinted that some of the new men may be called to the colors as early as May 1 by boards which are nearing the end of their supply of available registrants.

Richland county boards still have a few 1-A men left and anticipate drawing many more from the present 1-B and 3-A classifications as the result of the army's decision to take men with remediable defects and those with sufficient teeth, either natural or plates, to enable them to obtain adequate nourishment at home or in the army.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary Stimson said the other day that we are not going to "string out our defenses under thoughtless pressure" of this locality or that to protect it against sudden raids or other attacks.

He mentioned the submarine attack in the great oil and gas depot at Aruba, Curacao as an example of what he meant. The policy is to be one of building up mass armies to take the offensive when we are ready.

Gen. Johnson.

Of the navy, on the same day, Secretary Knox said of the same problem that we have "an awful lot of bread (areas to defend) but very little butter (navy) and so we will have to spread the butter as thin as we can."

Although probably not so intended, these principles contradict each other. One looks to a concentration of forces even at the risk of loss and damage from local attacks. The other seeks to guard everything and, through weakness everywhere, winds up by guarding nothing.

Keeping in mind that no military policy is a mathematical rule and that each must be applied with chances to fit changing facts, the former's (Mr. Stimson's) is just about principle number one of military strategy.

He has stated it well—but are we practicing it well? We are properly not disposing our armies in this early stage of organization, equipment and training with an eye to guarding every little Podunk—even on our two coasts where any of them is a possible target for shells or bombs. But when it comes to world strategy and distribution of troops the sky is literally the limit.

We have been told on the highest authority that we have a dozen expeditionary forces abroad and they are scattered, as this column long ago said they would be, almost from the Straits of Malacca to the Straits of Dover.

They can't be large. There isn't enough transport and equipment for that. They are just little pinches of human star-dust set down here and there where their value can scarcely be more than morale and their physical striking force next to nil. We can violate the rule abroad but not, it seems, at home.

Now, as a matter of fact, the secret of not attempting to guard every foot of frontier in a continuous line seems to be not very well understood by Mr. Stimson. It does not just mean concentrating all troops in imposing armies getting ready for some grand offensive.

It means guessing probable enemy objectives and locating the masses of force with such regard to roads and natural obstacles and avenues that any hit-and-run attacker will think a long time before he strikes too deeply home.

Take the case of Aruba. It is such a natural that even this column, two days before the attack, predicted that it was one of four targets most likely for a fast shot. It is one of the world's greatest ports of outlet for gas and oil.

Some navy man said later that the attack was probably a feint. Four fine and greatly needed tankers surely sunk and others crippled in about an hour. Some feint!

Then an army man said that there was much oil on the surface and that the sub therefore was probably sunk. With so many tons of tanker oil bleeding there why wouldn't there be oil on the surface?

We can't as Secretary Stimson says, guard every locality on the spot but can't we guard great areas from a distance and still keep our masses concentrated? That was what Hawaii was for and after our rude lesson there it will probably be effective for just that purpose in the future.

For even that task, on two oceans, we have even now no surplus force, but if the Japs can make as good use of inferior resources by using them smartly, why can't we?

SAYS NAZIS USE SOVIET-PHOBIA AS PROPAGANDA

Ex-Ambassador Claims World Revolution Talk Aimed at Softening Allies.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Soviet Russia, asserted last night that Nazi propagandists were attempting "to soften resistance" against the Axis powers by spreading fear of a Communist world revolution among the United Nations.

Speaking at a Russian war relief rally, Davies said Russia's history failed to justify such fears.

"Premier Stalin is a realist," he said. "Under his leadership the Soviet Union years ago discarded Trotsky's idea of projecting Communism through 'world revolution.' They set themselves to make their theories work in Russia."

Davies said Nazi propaganda was behind such questions as "will Stalin quit? Will he make a separate peace with Hitler? Questions which reflect on the integrity and honor of the Soviet leadership."

"The plain answer is that Stalin and his government have solemnly pledged to England, Poland, to the United States, and to all the United Nations, that it will fight to the end and make no separate peace with Hitler," he said.

Davies said there also were "weasel voices which suggest that by helping the Soviet Union now, there is risk to ourselves of losing our form of government to Communism."

"It is obviously silly," he continued, "to assume we cannot risk water to put the fire out, because of the fear that we might get our feet wet and catch cold."

Praising Stalin for his military policies and the Russian people for heroism and suffering in their "scorched earth" policy, Davies concluded:

"Before any of us should challenge the good faith of our Soviet allies, we should have the right through blood, sacrifice, and tears, to sit in judgment upon the honor, or the good faith of these gallant people, who are prodigally giving of their lives to stop Hitler."

Mansfield police thought today they had finally caught up with long-hunted tire thieves when they received a report that a man was hiding four tires beneath a bridge on East Third street. Investigation revealed that the tires were little more than junk and entirely useless except for scrap. Police took the man into custody, however, and said that petit larceny charges would probably be filed.

The county's draft boards often have complaints from registrants who claim they have "influential friends" who will help them to obtain deferment, but Board 3 had found a registrant today who wants his lodge to use ite influence to get him in the army sooner. Eager to start his training, the youth was told that he would not be called until sometime in March. He said he would appeal to his lodge to help him get an earlier order for induction.

Especially proud today—Washington's birthday — is Raymond Wert, 12, of a cast iron souvenir hatchet he owns which is said to have been cast at the time of the inauguration of the first president. Raymond, a fifth grader at Hedges school, is the son of Mrs. Marie Ford of 397 Lincoln avenue. He received the souvenir from his grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Sheriff, who lives with his mother. Original owner is supposed to have been his great grandfather.

City workers in the municipal building were given a vacation on Lincoln's birthday while county employes worked. Today the process was reversed with the county vacationing and the city working. Last-minute orders from Mayor W. J. Locke Saturday called for only a "skeleton" force for Washington's birthday, but the order arrived a bit too late. Practically all of the city office workers were at their desks this morning, wondering who was supposed to be off.

BOATMEN SAVE FIVE AS CRAFT SMASHES UP

Swollen Ohio Currents Dash Boat Against Pier In Ohio River.

(By Associated Press)

NEWPORT, Ky. — From the splintered towboat G. W. McBride, rivermen sought today to recover bodies of 16 persons trapped when the swollen Ohio river dashed the boat against a stone bridge pier before dawn Sunday.

Two men in a johnboat rescued five crewmen who scrambled atop the portside of the towboat which broke in half against the pier and rolled on its side. One of those rescued, Ernest Easter, 37-year-old Buena Vista, O., deck hand, said:

"She went down just about as fast as it takes you to climb from the first to the second floor."

The bodies of 13 men and three women were believed still to be in the 170-foot boat that swirling channel waters pinned against the upriver side of the pier near midstream, leaving only a small part above the muddy waters.

Ross Smith, a professional diver, volunteered help for today's renewal of an effort to recover the missing.

Rivermen recalled the tragedy as the worst on the Ohio in more than 20 years.

The victims were: Capt. Peter Oliver Lallance, 60, of Ashland, Ky.; Capt. Roy Edgington, 49, pilot, of Augusta, Ky.; James Crum, mate, of Catlettsburg, Ky.; Kenneth Peck, 45, chief engineer, of Henderson, W. Va.; Charles Sayre, 38, engineer, of Henderson; Hurley Burchfield, 33, deck hand, of Henderson; Clarence James, watchman, of Huntington, W. Va.; Charles Medley, 42, and his brother, Sam, firemen, both of Huntington.

James Foulks, fireman, and his wife, Jessie, second cook, both of Huntington; Mrs. Arley Henderson, 40, and her sister, Mrs. Verna Conner, 38, cooks, both of Miller, O.; Hartzell Brown, fireman, of Buena Vista, O.; Robert Kinkaid, boiler deck hand, of Portsmouth, O.; Kenneth McLean, deck hand, of Concord, Ky.

Joe Haas and Bill Pierman rowed from the Southern Ohio Yacht club through the hazy darkness to the wrecked boat and saved five crewmen as they huddled together on the side of the gunwale calling for help.

Rescued were Easter and George Harrison, 28, both of Buena Vista; Raleigh W. Hierman, 33, engineer, of Huntington; George Woomer, 30, engineer, of Henderson; and John W. Cain, 18, deck hand, of North Kenova, O.

The McBride, owned by the Ohio River company, approached the first of the five bridges connecting Cincinnati and northern Kentucky with four barges loaded with 1,000 tons of coal each and a fuel flat. This bridge, the recently toll-freed Louisville and Nashville railroad span, is in one of the most difficult stretches of the entire Ohio river to navigate, rivermen said, as the current shifts at high river stages and pushes boats toward the pier.

Making ready for this run, the McBride left five loaded barges a few miles upstream.

The McBride struck the pier broadside. Engineer Woomer said "five minutes before the crash we received a signal to back off. The boat backed full head, stopped right quick, changed rudder and was backing full head again at the time she broke in two."

Cut loose, the four barges floated downstream. One sank, two were picked up by the Union Barge line towboat "Peace," and a third was beached.

"A thorough investigation" was promised by E. J. Gutzwiller of Huntington, superintendent of the company. Arch L. Long, Cincinnati superintendent of the firm, estimated the destroyed boat's value at $100,000.

FLAMES KILL 6 IN HOTEL FIRE

Former Owner Killed as She Leaps From Third Story Window at Akron.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — Three women and three men died today in a fire which destroyed the Eleanor hotel, in a 70-year-old building at High and Market streets in downtown Akron.

The dead were identified tentatively as: Mrs. Margaret Barrett, who formerly operated the hotel; Miss Effie Hinton, about 26, a cafe singer; Mrs. Mary Shannon, 54; Paul Franklin Springston, 32, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Chet Talkington, 45, a house painter; one unidentified man.

Two other persons were burned severely — Carl Blankenship, 32, and his wife, Blanche, 39.

Peter Kniple, of Doylestown, O., who recently bought the hotel, said there were 25 to 27 persons in it when the fire broke out about 2 a. m.

Returning from Work, Preston W. Beal, 26, found smoke coming from a closet beneath a stairway between the second and third floor. Firemen found the stairway blocked by flames. The hotel occupied the second and third floors of the building, with a wallpaper store on the ground floor.

Mrs. Barrett received fatal injuries in jumping from a third floor window.

Several of the residents, finding that a fire escape ladder was stuck, jumped to safety.

The fire claimed more lives than any in Akron since Christmas day, 1928, when six were killed in the Park hotel fire.

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1 SLAIN IN BLAZING SOUTHERN GUN BATTLE

(By United Press)

MERIDIAN, Miss. — The long criminal career of Irving Charles Chapman, the nation's most sought after desperado, ended last night when police and federal agents shot and killed him in a blaze of gunfire.

Listed as public enemy number one by the federal bureau of investigation, Chapman had been the object of a long and intensified search. On Jan. 14 he shot Patrolman Ralph McNair here and the FBI immediately closed in.

With the aid of Meridian police, dozens of sheriff's deputies and other authorities, the FBI trapped Chapman by blocking a road near Philadelphia, north of Meridian. They offered him a chance to surrender.

"Come out of your car with your hands up," one FBI officer commanded.

"Go ahead and shoot, you B—," Chapman yelled as he opened fire.

The officers returned his charge and in seconds it was all over. He slumped against the wheel and when the officers reached him he was dead. He had 14 bullets scattered through his body.

Death came to the notorious southwestern desperado in the Neoshoba county where he was born 38 years ago. He became a successful contractor in Arkansas but turned to crime during the depression years. He robbed banks, stole automobiles, ransacked filling stations, organized bloody jail breaks and led officers of many states on wild chases for more than a decade.

GETS TRANSFER

Erdmann Goes to Philadelphia Plant of Westinghouse.

Transfer of George W. Erdmann, Jr., sales training supervisor of the Westinghouse range department, to the production department of the company's Philadelphia plant, was announced today by Frank R. Kohnstamm, sales manager.

Erdmann already has reported to the Philadelphia plant to take over his new duties, which will be concerned with the defense orders being manufactured there.

Erdmann came here from Cleveland in 1936. After three years in the advertising department, he was appointed to the range sales position, in which he has directed training of thousands of wholesale and retail salesmen throughout the country.

In Mansfield he and Mrs. Erdmann resided at 1 Constance court. His wife will remain in Mansfield until March 15.

FBI Agents Trap Marion Robber In Cleveland Home

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Ivan Graham Phillips, 34, Marion, convicted bank robber and fugitive from Lima state hospital, was under heavy guard in City hospital today with a bullet wound in his shoulder after capture by FBI agents.

Phillips was seen in Cleveland Saturday afternoon and Lee V. Boardman, Cleveland FBI agent, arranged the trap in which he was captured early Sunday. Phillips escaped on two previous occasions when FBI men spotted him, once in Detroit and once in Cleveland.

Phillips fled from Lima state hospital Dec. 21. He was sent there in September, 1941, to begin a life sentence in the $32,000 robbery of a Central Trust company branch bank in Cincinnati.

Federal agents trailed him to a house in East Cleveland where he was seen drinking with two couples in the kitchen. FBI men and city detectives entered the house and Phillips was shot when he jumped through a window attempting to escape.

President To Speak Tonight

SUMATRA, Java, Bali, Rangoon, Darwin—and scores of other faraway places that until recent weeks meant little to average American readers—have suddenly become important because of their direct association with the war in which this country is now engaged.

Maps of the Far East, and of the entire world, have taken on new interest and globes of sufficient size to give location of Pacific islands and Asiatic cities are in greater demand than ever before.

In his address at 10 o'clock tonight it is expected that President Roosevelt will make reference to many parts of the world which have prominent places in the war news and it has been suggested that listeners who have a world map before them will be better enabled to get a clear vision of the war picture to date.

This "fireside chat" comes at a time when many Americans are awakening to keener realization of what the war may mean to this country and it is anticipated that the president will be heard, on this occasion, by the largest world-wide audience in history.

Command From General Washington

TWO HUNDRED AND TEN years ago, the father of a new nation was born. He lived at a time when life depended on courage, surprise attack and endurance. He fought his battles when the penalty of bungling was death; of delay, an arrow through the chest; of relaxing, a bullet in the back; of trusting the enemy, a scalp on the redskin's belt.

In these early Indian wars, Washington learned to fight the cunning of the savage with even greater cunning. He learned to avoid the ambush and to prepare one. He knew that defense is but a fraction of victory, and that victory comes only to the masters of the swift offensive.

Today we are again at war. Again it is a savage enemy, with the tactics of Washington's day—but more cunning, more powerful, more treacherous. Again we see the same deadly ambush, the same surprise attack. Defenders of liberty are massacred by the thousands.

It is befitting that on Washington's 210th birthday we call him again to the service of his country. We must heed his advice and survey our problems through his experience. In early December of 1941, in the city that bears his name, he would have seen the smiling, masked face of the Asiatic savage, waiting in ambush. Today he would see hundreds of these same savages on our Pacific coast, hiding behind our freedoms, preparing another ambush . . . and waiting.

His command would be: Clear them out now! All of them! Protect yourself as best you can, but remember, the end of the war comes only with death. Your killer enemies know this well. As the beast of prey, they have struck swiftly and at the vital centers—Vienna, Prague, Warsaw, Paris. Pearl Harbor . . . Singapore! There isn't time to build an effective wall of defense over all of our extensive areas. Therefore, take what you have now and prepare your spearhead. Aim it directly at the heart, and drive it home in Berlin and Tokyo!

OCD To 'Strip for Action'

TO WHAT extent the Office of Civilian Defense will be further cleared of deadwood, as a result of the decision by Director Landis that it is "urgently necessary that OCD be immediately stripped down for emergency action," is not yet clear.

The few thousands of dollars involved as salary for Mayris Chaney, the dancer who was to have had charge of children's cultural activities in civilian defense, was inconsequential as compared to the large total of salaries required to meet the payroll of political hangers-on and administration favorites who had become attached to OCD while that agency was being directed by Mayor LaGuardia and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Granted the best of intentions, it cannot be doubted that OCD appointments for which Mrs. Roosevelt was responsible served to lessen public confidence in the work of this highly essential organization, and it was the introduction of Melvyn Douglas and Miss Chaney into the picture that brought on such a wave of disapproval as to result in action, including the resignation of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Civilian defense, as a government agency supported by taxpayers' money, is rightly regarded by a majority of people as designed to set up local organizations and programs for public protection against air raids or any other form of enemy attack, including safeguards against possible sabotage.

The "beliefs" of Mrs. Roosevelt, which she felt to be under attack, appear to have been more directly associated with New Deal ideology than with the realities of war, and some of her OCD appointments give indication of having been similarly inspired.

If, as Director Landis says, OCD is to be immediately "stripped for emergency action," there will be need for still further elimination of deadwood—which may also result in clearing Washington of some of its "parasites," for whom there is much more room in their home cities.

Another Kind of Hero

DON'T bother me; I'm too busy." That's what an employe in one American factory said to a visitor who wanted to congratulate him on the record he had made for speedy and accurate work. He was too busy for praise—too busy helping to turn out the war material that our country so urgently needs.

Throughout America today there are plenty of others like him—men and women who with their work are helping the United Nations to make a gallant stand for liberty in every part of the world. Many of them have perfected new techniques that speed up war production. Many others have developed ways of saving vital materials, ways of using substitutes. All of them are giving their knowledge and their skill to Uncle Sam's main job of winning the war.

They don't often make the front pages, these people. Yet their work is one of the reasons behind the rapid increase in industry's output of war materials. Together with the men who plan our war production and manage our war plants, they are the heroes on America's factory front.

It now seems likely that pensions for congressmen will be repealed before Dr. Gallup gets around to a poll on the subject.

The rate at which March 15 is approaching gives an idea that it might be arrested for speeding.

Speed First Consideration In War

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Little attention was paid to the final decision of the Supreme Court in the famous "exorbitant profits" case of the Bethlehem Steel company, growing out of ship-building contracts with the government in the first World war, but it was made clear that a line of thought, ruling our government today, helps to obstruct the war effort.

The attitude is that big profits are wicked, much more to be criticized than waste and inefficiency which result in higher prices! To put it another way, it is not what a given article costs the purchaser which is important; it is the profit made on that article, whether the purchaser be the government, which means the taxpayers, or the individual consumer.

THIS reasoning runs all through government thinking. It seems to many of us to be foggy economic thinking in peacetime, to be downright murder in wartime. In wartime, of course, all sound economics goes out the window. It must. There is nothing economical about war.

An extra plane or an extra ship or an extra gun—even an extra shell, in any given battle may not only decide that battle, it may decide the campaign. It may decide the war; it may result directly in saving thousands of lives by ending the war sooner. So it makes no difference what the extra ship, plane, gun or shell costs. We must have it.

That does not mean to say that the government should pay absurd prices for things, but it should get everything needed that it possibly can regardless of price or anything else, and it should leave squabbling about prices and all other details, including anti-trust laws, fair trade laws and everything else, until after the war.

But the point involved in this Bethlehem case applies to peacetime economics as well as war economics.

Here was a case where the government made a contract based on profit-sharing, so to speak. The contract specified that the company should be paid, among other things, a percentage of any savings it could effect on the estimates of the cost of the ships the government had approved.

BOTH lower courts took into consideration the contention that the final price paid by the government for these ships, including the profit, was LOWER than that paid for similar ships on other contracts. The government's contention was that the profit was too large.

The majority opinion of the Supreme Court, written by Justice Hugo Black, regretted that the court could not, under the law, direct the refund of these profits. It suggested that the remedy lay with congress, which in advance, should have made such profits impossible. The minority opinion, written by Justice Frankfurter, contented that it was unthinkable that the court did not have the power to do something in the face of such an outrage.

Nobody seemed to think that the efficiency which cheapened the price, as compared with other contracts deserved a reward.

And, more important, nobody seemed to bother about what became of the profit! For consider, at that time there were not only corporation income taxes, and excess profit taxes, but personal income taxes which ran up to nearly 70 per cent.

As pointed out previously, the British have a neat system for such cases. The government takes 100 per cent of excess profits, earmarking 20 per cent for future adjustments — AFTER the war.

Health and Diet

General Practitioners are Valuable.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I WENT down into the countryside the other day to meet with a county medical society. I found a young doctor who had been in practice for about a year—he was doing general practice in a small village and was having more work than he knew what to do with.

I also met his wife. She was a trained nurse whom he had met during his interneship in a 1,000-bed hospital. She had never lived outside a large city until she came out to help him. She now goes out on obstetric cases with him, gives the anaesthetic, visits the babies and sees the mothers through their convalescence, and helps him with minor and emergency surgery.

She had swell eyes. Sort of blue-gray and when she began to talk, they lit up way down inside and glowed.

They must make a great team. I can imagine the neighbors saying, "Get the young doctor whose wife is a trained nurse." Everytime I got alone with one, they told me how good the other one was. He said she gave a peach of an anaesthetic and all the people liked her, she got along just fine with everybody. She bragged on what a good obstetrician he was and what a clever surgeon.

It did me good—that meeting. I felt there was some hope for the country yet if such people were carrying on. It would be great to start over again like that, young and ambitious and interested—and dauntless.

I talked to another doctor's wife that evening. She said her husband was a general practitioner too. I said I thought that was fine. She said she thought so too, but she had been sort of ashamed of it when she went to the city lately, and all the doctors at the hospital said, "Your husband, a general practitioner? My, how strange!" I said, "That is just the city's bad luck. All the people in the city keep asking me where a general practitioner is."

A general practitioner is the most valuable individual a family could attach themselves to, if for no other reason, because he can see that a member of the family gets in the right hands, goes to the right specialist, if he can't handle the condition himself. She said, yes, she thought a general practitioner who knew his limitations was a valuable asset to a community. She was a very intelligent woman, and I felt like hurrahing for doctors' wives in general.

The general practitioner can handle most of your troubles anyway. There are ten thousand diseases in th eworld, but the first ten thousand patients the doctor gets are not going to have one each of those diseases.

Nine thousand of them will have one of a few—ten or twelve—common conditions that any general practitioner can handle—colds, maybe pneumonia, obstetric cases in the world, but the first boils, sprains, stomach upsets, heart failure, need for a complete physical examination, nervousness, simple skin or gynaecologic conditions, sore throats, conjunctivitis, etc.

Big Land Sale to Government Reveals Politician Back of It

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—A highly interesting transaction whereby the Republican national committeeman for Oregon sold the government a big tract of land for a new government aluminum plant has just come to the attention of the justice department.

Officially the name of Ralph H. Cake, Republican national committeeman, did not appear in the transaction.

However, the records show that Ralph Cake, who owned the tract of land, deeded it to the Portland Mortgage company, of which he is president and chief owner, for the nominal sum of $10. Later the Portland Mortgage company sold the land to the government for $80,000.

One other interesting phase of the whole business was the fact that the interior department was dead opposed to this location of the new aluminum plant. The plant is one of the wartime aluminum factories built by the government, but to be operated by Alcoa for the production of emergency aluminum. It will get power from Bonneville dam.

The interior department, which operates Bonneville dam, proposed that the plant be located near the dam. This would save expensive power transmission lines, also would put the plant further inland, away from coastal attack.

The interior department put up a vigorous argument on this point. But the Alcoa people, plus certain interests in the war department argued for the other site. The debate continued some time. But in the end, Mr. Cake's mortgage company made a lush sale.

Nazi Sabotage.

IN FIXING blame for the Normandie fire and other suspicious tragedies, it might be well to review the sabotage fire at Kingland, N. J., in 1917, for which an international court held Germany responsible.

The Kingsland plant was making shells for Russia at the rate of 3,000,000 per month. Later it was testified that a workman named Wozniak had spilled a pan of alcohol over his bench just before the blaze started. There was also evidence regarding the use of incendiary pencils—pencils containing chemicals which, when the pencil is broken and the two parts mixed, a white hot flame spurts forth.

The U. S. government charged that Wozniak, a Russian who had served in the Austrian army, was hired by a German agent named Himsch to use incendiary pencils to start the fire.

Today, Wozniak is still in the United States. Some time ago he applied for American citizenship, but was refused on the advice of the state department. There is no suspicion that he has been engaged in sabotage in this war, but there is suspicion that the same method of several dozen incendiary pencils might have been thrown into the staterooms of the Normandie.

Gas Masks for Senators.

JIM LANDIS, new civil defense administrator, was testifying before the senate appropriations committee of which Senator Carter Glass of Virginia is chairman. Glass has known Landis for years, used to heckle him when, as chairman of the securities and exchange commission, Landis was heckling Wall Street. Now they are more friendly.

This time Landis testified regarding civil defense appropriations—fire fighting equipment, first aid, gas masks. The gas masks evoked quite a debate. Finally, as Landis concluded and left the room, he met Senator Glass in the corridor.

"I had to leave," said the senator, pointing to his arguing colleagues. "I had no gas mask."

Note—Landis is weeding out Mrs. R.'s and LaGuardia's deadwood; bringing order out of civil defense chaos.

Sugar Shortage.

IF THERE is an investigation of the sugar shortage, certain agriculture department masterminds will have to do a lot of explaining.

Few know that these masterminds, over the protests of domestic beet-sugar producers, last year forced a reduction of sugar-beet acreage of from 17 to 20 per cent; also that cane which would have yielded 300,000 tons of sugar was left to rot in Puerto Rican fields because processing was prohibited.

Sugar producers on the other hand, vigorously urged that domestic quotas be lifted to permit maximum output. But the agriculture moguls refused to heed these warnings. Led by Secretary Claude Wickard, they insisted the United States had ample sugar supplies for all needs—and they kept on chorusing this refrain right up to a few weeks ago when Wickard, as a guest speaker on Mrs. Roosevelt's Sunday night radio program, completely changed his tune and broke the news that sugar would have to be rationed.

Wickard bases the shortage on two grounds: (1) heavy demands from our allies, particularly Russia, whose sugar producing region has been devastated by the Nazis; (2) greatly reduced imports from the Philippines and Hawaii.

Wickard is correct about our allies, but only partially so on the Islands.

The Philippines are out, but not Hawaii. Large munitions shipments are constantly going to these islands, and instead of coming back empty, the ships can carry sugar.

Agriculture department tycoons are making a big ado about how essential their activities are to the war effort. One essential might be less bungling in unrestricting farm production.

Note—Puerto Rico now has on hand, and waiting to be ground, more sugar-cane than it is allowed to process under the production quota set by the agriculture department.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—For a person who tries never to predict, to make some estimate of what is going to result from senatorial and executive surveys of government personnel is really taking the bit. But there are straws in the wind now too thick to be ignored.

First, the federal government, with a quarter of a million employes in Washington and a million more "in the field," already has exceeded the wildest forecasts. Here alone it is growing at the rate of 6,000 employes a month. Senator Tydings, Maryland's anti-administration Democrat, has described it as "an overgrown monstrosity from top to bottom."

Every one of the ten departments headed by members of the cabinet have pleaded that they are all or in great part necessary to the war effort and therefore should have priorities in appropriations and the hiring of additional personnel. Seven of these have been classified as necessary in toto, three in part. Out of 36 independent agencies and bureaus of the government, only eight lay no claim to being essential to all-out war.

IN SPITE of the vast expansion of government personnel, not all of the departments have added employes in the last year. That much-criticized fellow, Harold L. Ickes, has cut his Interior department staff about 2,500 in 18 months up to Jan. 1. However, at that time, the trend again was up. The Labor department is down slightly, having lost one of its agencies (Immigration and Naturalization) to Justice. The Agriculture department also had reduced its force by more than 1,000 persons at last report. All others have grown.

THERE are two more important factors in the present picture. First, and it is principally political, practically all divisions of government now are under civil service and each state has a quota. Applicants from under-quota states are given preference. In spite of all the additions in recent months, there still are 25 states that haven't filled their quotas and by law, the civil service commission has to scour the applicants from these states before it fills jobs from the heavily over-quota District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia.

Then, too, until now, no government employe with a good civil service rating in purely non-essential branches of government, has had any assurance that his status could be retained or recaptured if he stepped out to take an essential war job.

Out of the present drive to put the government on a real war basis, many of these bottlenecks are likely to be broken.

Add to this the reorganization of many agencies, such as is taking place in the Office of Civilian Defense, and the lopping off of some whose activities overlap, and it is likely that within the next six months or so the government is in for the greatest reorganization that has occurred under the New Deal or any other.

A Farmer's Diary

On the Bridge

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE OLD covered bridge along the winding back creek road has been repaired and will serve a while yet. In the day of its building, material for bridges grew straight and tall upon the stream banks. The great curved arcs that braced each side were cut and shaped with axes. Rafters were hand hewn and the straight split cross pieces that served for lath, on which the clapboards rested.

Now mill-sawed lath have been placed between and modern shingles tacked on evenly. The wrought iron nails that held the perpendicular siding have corroded and many pieces are missing. The walls of the abutment are crumbling. Heavy chiseled stones have crashed upon the sandy base. Behind the wall, the heavy earth pushes constantly—as though Nature said it had served man long enough and now this rubble shall again be food for the green climbing ivy or the mighty oak. But even yet the bulging wall will hold awhile, and steel bridges are not to be had, just now. The bridge connects a farming community with a country town and saves miles of travel for light loads.

I saw a horse and buggy approaching, and waited to hear the hoofs upon the boards and the old familiar rumble of the wheels that echoed along the valley. The horse was a rounded bay and the buggy lurched along the rutty road, with certain, steady progress.

I watched it go on down over a rise of ground, and hardly had the sound of hoofs died away until an airplane zoomed across the sky—the southbound passenger plane. When the roar of the motor had passed, I stood on the bridge alone. Beneath me the water rippled and purled and everlastingly worked upon the bridge foundation. The bridge was old—but the ageless stream was very young—the view was much the same from where I stood as on the first day the bridge was used, I thought.

To me there was even something reassuring in the idea. "Oh, why should the spirit of mortals be proud?"

SHIRLEY HALL WISE WEDS LEE HUMPHREY

Columbus Girl and Mansfielder Attending Ohio State University Exchange Nuptial Vows In Candlelight Service On Feb. 20.

IN AN impressive candlelight service in the Burgess Avenue United Brethren church in Columbus on Feb. 20 Miss Shirley Hall Wise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kirkpatrick of Columbus, became the bride of Lee Junior Humphrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Humphrey, R. D. 6. Rev. E. E. Burtner performed the double ring ceremony at 8:30 p. m. before an altar decorated with palms, ferns and lighted tapers. Mrs. Burtner, organist, played nuptial music preceding and during the service.

The former Miss Wise, who was given in marriage by Mr. Kirkpatrick, was attired in a white wool street length frock with matching accessories. Her only jewelry was a gold necklace, a gift of the bridegroom, and she wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Miss Wilma Humphrey, sister of the bridegroom of this city, served as the bride's maid-of-honor. She wore a soldier blue crepe frock with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses. Charles Humphrey, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick appeared at her daughter's wedding in an aqua blue wool tailored suit with wine accessories and a shoulder corsage of carnations. Mrs. Humphrey wore a navy blue crepe frock with black accessories and a corsage of sweet peas and roses. Following the ceremony a reception was held for 125 guests at the home of the bride's parents. Luncheon was served from a long table decorated with pink and white roses and centered with a two tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple.

Mrs. Humphrey was graduated from North High school and attended Ohio State university. She is now associated with the editorial staff of the Columbus Citizen. Mr. Humphrey was graduated from Lexington high school and is now attending Ohio State university. He will enter the U. S. Army Air corps in June. The couple is now residing at 124 West Eighth avenue in Columbus.

Guests who attended the wedding and reception from Mansfield were the bridegroom's parents, Miss Lucille Humphrey, Eugene Humphrey, Miss Wilma Humphrey and Henry Bertka.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Reading Given By Mrs. Guthrie For Coterie Club

In commemoration of George Washington's birthday, Mrs. Alice McGinley entertained members of the Coterie club at her home on Glessner avenue last week-end. Mrs. Josphine Sonner, as leader for the group, gave quotations of great men in response to the roll call.

A reading about "Martha Washington, the First First Lady," was given by Mrs. D. C. Guthrie. The afternoon was spent in social conversation and sewing. Luncheon was served by the hostess. Next meeting will take place on March 6 at the home of Mrs. Frank Bair on Helen avenue.

Colonial Tea Given Sunday At Moose Home

New candidates of the Women of the Moose were honored guests at a Silver Colonial tea given at the Moose home Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Alice Mast was in charge of arrangements. Luncheon was served from a long table attractively decorated with lighted tapers and flowers in pastel colors. Mrs. Opal Stentz and Mrs. Josephine Schomer, who were in costume, served the guests.

Mrs. Alice Mast, dressed as Martha Washington, and Mrs. Hazel Tupps, as George Washington, presided at the table. Mrs. Mae Bookman, Mrs. Mary Ritchie, Mrs. Nora Sowash, Mrs. Bertha Tinkey and Mrs. Margaret Daugherty, dressed as colonial women, assisted them. Mrs. Alice Mitchell, accordionist, furnished music during the afternoon. The next regular meeting of the group will be held March 4 at the Moose home.

Unusual Talk To Be Given For Kiwanians

An interesting and unusual program has been arranged for the meeting of the Kiwanis club which will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel Thursday noon. Guests for the occasion will be wives or friends of the members.

George Campbell, who was born 22 years ago in Lawton, Okla., with double congenital cataracts, will describe his sensations and reactions upon first seeing the light of day after 18 years of total blindness. He saw for the first time, in 1937, following a series of surgical operations. In his talk, Mr. Campbell will tell the group how he learned to identify colors. The title of his lecture is "Out of Shadows, Into Light." William L. Althouse will be chairman for this committee.

Working Mothers Need Help

By GARRY C. MYERS, M. D.

IN RAPIDLY increasing numbers, mothers of growing children are going to work outside the home. Usually this work will prove a patriotic service. In consequence, however, some children may be neglected and many of these working mothers will be burdened with worries and anxieties over their children's physical and moral safety.

Yet, through thoughtful planning many mothers will hire competent help to care for their younger children. It is desirable to have a dependable person in the home not only for the infant and tot but also for the runabout. Even the teen-aged youth might feel the need of finding some responsible person at home when he arrives from school. To this end many a grandparent can render a valuable and patriotic service.

Husband Should Help

Of course, there soon will be a scarcity of all desirable domestic help. However, all too many working mothers are unwilling to pay adequately for competent caretakers for their children, though some of these could afford to do so. Too few husbands, furthermore, are ready to approve such expenditures by working mothers.

Many working mothers must do a day's work at home at night after returning from a hard day of work outside the home. Some of these mothers lose their health. So worn and weary, how can any of them be good companions to their children and afford them necessary love and emotional security? This also applies to mothers who return to their families in the evening all worn out from amusements.

Wise, unselfish husbands pitch in and share with their wives the home burdens. Both parents strive to cultivate in children who are old enough a readiness to help in the home. See the character values to the children so trained. Some children, indeed, under proper guidance, are fortunate to have mothers working just because these children learn home responsibilities.

Children Eager to Help

It should be observed that many children are ready and eager to cooperate at helping in the home. Even when they are denied the presence of the mother to greet them on return from school, these children may not feel at all neglected, if they know their mother is working from a sense of duty, but the same children might have a wholly different attitude should the mother choose to be away from home just for selfish pleasure.

I wish teachers would do more at school to inspire children to want to share responsibilities at home, especially when their mothers work. In this direction the church and Sunday school might also render a bigger service than they do.

Sorority Elects Officers

Club Hears About 'Pan-American Music' Sunday

A very interesting talk on "Pan-American Music" was given by Mrs. Paul Cropper, member of the Mansfield Music Study club, for the Student Music club members Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, 282 West Fourth street. She told the group of the geographical background of Brazil and Chile, of the history of those two countries, of their settlers and sources of their native music. Dances and musical instruments were described. Mrs. Cropper also gave brief sketches of the modern composers of Brazil and Chile.

Native love songs of Brazil and Chile were rendered and dances were played as piano selections by John Grabler. Following the program, luncheon was served buffet style from a table decorated with red cyclamen and tall, red tapers in candelabra. Janet Baughman and Lois Robinson, music students at Ohio State university, were guests at the meeting. The club will have a recital program on March 15 at the home of Walter Simon on Blymyer avenue.

Elect Officers At Meeting Of Group Saturday

Mrs. Dwight Arnholt was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail association at a meeting held Saturday in the Crestline Y. M. C. A. Other officers elected were Mrs. Carl Miller, vice president; Mrs. B. O. Brenner, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. J. C. Appleman, corresponding secretary. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. T. H. McCreary and Mrs. W. S. Marshall of Crestline and Mrs. Carl Miller of this city.

Luncheon was served at one o'clock at a long table decorated with patriotic appointments and centered with an arrangement of carnations. Mrs. F. C. McNeal, retiring president, conducted the business session. Nineteen members were in attendance. Mrs. McNeal gave sketches from the lives of Lincoln and Washington whose birthdays are in February.

Plans were made to hold a joint meeting with the Railway Mail association on March 21 at the American Legion home in this city. Members of the Alliance auxiliary will be guests at this session. The meeting will be held at 2 p. m. Dinner will be served at 6 p. m. Hostesses will be Mrs. B. O. Brenner, Mrs. H. A. Coffey, Mrs. E. W. Dye and Mrs. Emma Van Liew.

REGULAR MEET.

Regular meeting of the Miriam Rebekah lodge was held Wednesday evening, Feb. 18. Following the business meeting a party was given in honor of Miss Lois Addlesperger, recently elected district representative. Della Cochran, Emma Shocker, Bernice Tinkey and Frances Beamer were in charge of the evening entertainment.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A group of friends and relatives surprised Mrs. Norman Dinninger with a birthday party at her home on Morgan avenue Saturday evening. Bingo was played and prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, Mrs. C. R. McKee and Joseph Warring. Buffet supper was enjoyed. Centerpiece for the table was a large birthday cake.

In-Laws Put Marriage on The Rocks

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband and I have been separated for several months after going together for three years and being married for a year and a half. We have a baby.

The cause of our separation was my mother-in-law, who lived next door and always got into our business affairs. Some time ago my husband started drinking and staying out late. Of course I'd get after him for doing that and leaving me alone at home. It seems every time we fussed, one of his relations interfered, and gradually he turned against me.

I still love him and I am more than sure he still cares for me, but his people do not let him alone. My baby needs a father as well as a mother. He comes to see the baby very often and gives me money to buy his needs, but we do not talk to each other, and that breaks my heart. I stay home with my parents. Every time he comes I cry myself to sleep. UNHAPPY.

Frequently correspondents have accused me of being a special pleader for mothers-in-law. But your case seems to be the exception. Inasmuch as you love your husband, and I'm sure he loves you, it's the worst kind of folly to allow meddlesome in-laws to have brought about this separation. The next time your husband comes to see the baby, talk things out with him. Tell him you're willing to give your marriage a second trial, but you want to live as far away from your in-laws as possible.

If he meets you half way, I think it more than likely you will be able to make a go of your marriage. If this does happen, don't criticize his family.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm very much in love with a beautiful young girl. I've dated her occasionally but some of my boy friends are very jealous of me and are trying to take her away from me. I think they are only doing this to keep me from taking her out, and that they really don't care about her. What would you do in this case?

M.F.W.J.

Naturally, as your girl is beautiful, she looks as good to your boy friends as she does to you. Trying to steal one's girl is a situation as old as time, and a young man in your position has got to be twice as charming as "the enemy."

Flattery goes a long way with girls, but don't put it on with a trowel. Make her realize you think her absolutely beautiful and charming. Flowers and candy are a great ally. Take her to the movies, take her to dances. If you don't dance well, brush up this accomplishment at a good school. You've got to be on your toes and pit your wits against "the enemy."

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Spring's just around the corner—are you ready with a gay home frock? Do make up Pattern 9880—it has such fashion practical features! There's a jiffy front buttoning and bias side inset sections to make your waist "ring-size" and smoothly fitted. This front buttoning makes laundering such a joy, too, because you can spread the dress out flat and iron it easily. For quick sewing the shoulder yokes are cut in-one with the back, and the back is cut in two sections only. Try one of the new "Spring fruit prints"—use short or long sleeves—consult the Sew Chart on details! If you like, spice up this frock with a contrast collar and perhaps use an all-around belt.

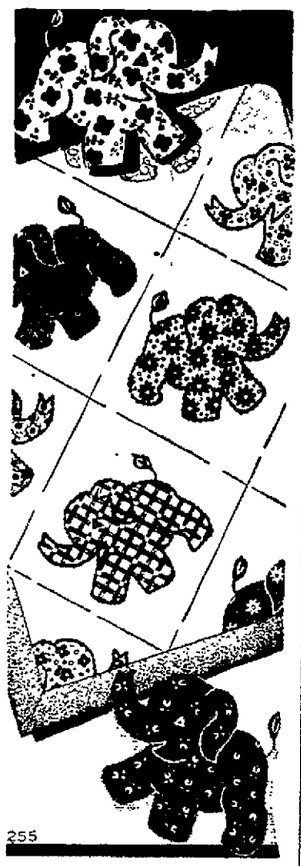
Pattern 9880 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin Pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Send you rorder to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.

By LAURA WHEELER

What luck! These good luck elephants come walking right out of your scrap bag. At the snip of a scissors the patch is ready for a block. So capture them and applique them on a quilt. Pattern 255 contains diagram of block; accurate pattern pieces; directions for making quilt; diagram of quilt; yardages; color schemes.



Send ten cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept. 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was engaged to a girl for three months when I was drafted, and we decided not to marry until after the war. You wrote an article in your column telling people to send Christmas boxes to soldiers. This inspired a girl friend to send me a cake and other eats.

I'm not in love with this girl but was very much in love with her at one time. My fiancee found out about the box and is furious. I told her the girl was only taking your advice. Please write something saying I had nothing to do with the eats, though they were much appreciated by some of the poor guys in camp who got nothing at all.

SOLDIER IN TROUBLE.

If your girl doesn't see my answer to your letter, taking the entire blame for the misunderstanding, please let me have the girl's name and address and I will be glad to write to her personally.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Olga rose from her chair as she asked me to keep her reaction to the queer painting from Olina. That she had seen something extremely significant in the oddly phrased fan letter with its accompanying water color painting, which her daughter had received, was plain.

"If you do not need me any more now, I think I will go back to my room and lock myself in for a little while," she said. "I want to consider this thing very carefully. And I promise you that as soon as I am free to do so, I will tell you everything I know, or imagine, about it."

Her smile as she uttered the last words was a rueful one, and I realized that her hope of connecting the water color painting with some memory of her own was not strong.

Reassures Olga.

"I am sure you will think of something," I assured her. "Would you like to take the painting with you?"

"I think not, thank you," she said. "The things I wish to think out really have nothing to do with the painting. But—I would never have thought of them if it had not been for this message to Olina."

"Will you excuse me, now?" she said, with the touch of formality which always will cling to her speech and manner. But with a sudden thought I detained her.

"In this letter," I said, "the writer says he is sending to her under another cover a personal, which if inserted in the New York —— will bring him to her immediately.

Warns Against Redfield.

"Stephen Redfield saw that reference, and I do not think it wise for him to see the personal when Olina receives it."

"I will tell her to keep her receipt of the letter a secret," she said promptly.

"One thing more," I hesitated; "will you object to having Philip see to it that nobody saving yourself, himself and Olina—and that means not even a trusted servant—has access to your mail, either at your home or here?"

"How could I possibly object?" she countered. "I shall warn Olina as soon as I reach our rooms, and shall tell Philip what you wish as soon as he returns from his visit to the theater."

"Then my mind is at rest," I told her, smiling, and she went out when I had finished speaking.

I closed the door after her, slipped the night catch, and then went through the camouflaged door panel to my own bedroom. I cast a longing look at the bed, for I felt that a short nap would fortify me for whatever task my father had in store for me.

But with a "get-thee-behind-me-Satan" steeling of my willpower, I went on into my living room and dialed the operator, asking for my father's room.

He answered immediately, but carefully refrained from mentioning my name, because, as I knew, he did not wish Ronald, recently arrived from Dalemont, to know that I had returned to the hotel.

"Who is this?" he asked with a perfunctory air.

Summons Spencer.

"Margaret," I answered softly. I always am careful not to use the diminutive in speaking my name to him. "Can you come over soon? I have much to tell you."

"I shall leave here at once," he said. "Goodbye."

I could visualize the impatience for action upon the part of the distraught boy he was leaving behind him. But I had no time to spend in sympathy with Ronald.

But I was ready for my father when he knocked upon my door, and entering waited only for me to close it before demanding tensely:

"What was Redfield's reaction? Will Mary be able to manage him?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

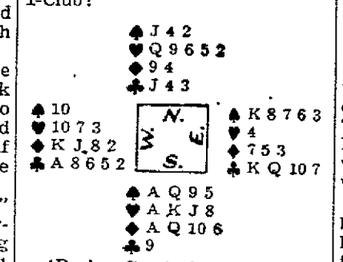
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE IT EASY FOR HIM

When you hold a hand so powerful that your partner is quite likely to have a weak holding, and yet you are not strong enough to open with a forcing two bid, obliging a game contract by your side, what are you going to do? Especially when you have three fine four-card suits, and you are willing to try a game if you can find your partner with just a few dregs of merit in one of them. Isn't the best opening bid the one which makes it easiest for him to respond with the barest amount of strength? And isn't that bid 1-Club?



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass

Use of a 1-Club bid to open such a deal probably will be unanimous among the first flight of expert players within the next few months, as soon as the reasons for it are more widely understood, as it is so obviously the best call. With hands of normal strength, neither near-minimum nor near-maximum, so that the partner is very likely to hold a fair amount of strength, the approved opener on a hand with three four-card suits is the suit just below the singleton. That makes it easier for him to respond, and for you to show your distribution, as a rule, since he is more likely to hold the suit in which you are short, than any other.

When you are as strong as South's holding here, however, 1-Club is the best bid, no matter what three suits you hold, as you want to help him respond at all. If he raises the club, you can try No Trumps. If he bids any other suit, hop to game if it is a major and to four if it is diamonds, letting him decide whether to try game.

This principle, first emphasized by Cecil Head of New York and his partner, Jerome Scheuer of Boston, brought a top to exemplifiers of it on this duplicate deal. Where 1-Spade was South's opening, it usually was passed, and the declarer had a struggle to make more than one extra trick above his discouraging contract.

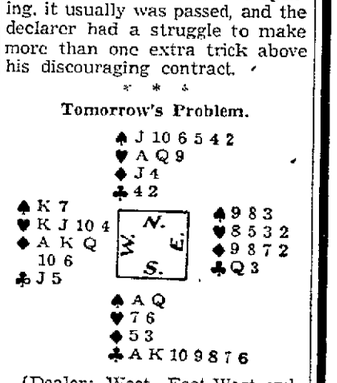
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

In the wrong contract of 5-Clubs, how would you play for it if West took two diamonds and then switched to the heart 4?

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, February 24.

A moderately successful and happy day is read from the predominant astral aspects, with the easier and more pleasant activities probably engaging the attention. While business affairs may move in routine grooves, the accent may be on social, domestic or sentimental doings, or on business enterprises that contribute to these. Artistic and cultural pursuits thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of happiness, progress and prosperity, especially in all matters involved in the home or private life. Domestic, social, emotional and artistic engagements overshadow more sordid activities, unless these are part of such associations. Art, music culture and all that enhances the idealistic and finer phases of living are under excellent prospects.

A child born on this day will be blessed with a gentle, sociable and friendly nature, which will combine to insure it a life of happines and success.

Treatment Of Facial Furrows

By MME. QUI VIVE

Just what do you do with your beauty budget, lady? How do you portion it out? Teacher can make a good guess. The biggest allotment goes to the care and arrangement of the hair. It counts up, too. Several permanents a year take a toll. Then there is the shampooing, with posibly a special rinse tagged onto the bill. The finger wave and hair dress seem to be necessities, especially as one gets older and the careless flowing effect is too juvenile. One needs the professional touch at times.

Fingernails get attention during the hair drying ordeal. They also demand cuticle cream, polish, polish remover.

However, when it comes to your celestial countenance, only the money flingers indulge in facials. You can manage the facial yourself during your beautifying home work. We refer especially to the older girls who have discovered that fine lines are creeping into the complexion fabric. That won't do. Catch 'em young. Don't let Time's cruel fingers touch you. He hasn't a heart, that old gent with the scythe and the long white whiskers.

When you trot-trot to the beauty shop bring home a jar of heavy cream. You are going to feed your portrait; it will be responsive.

When you wash your face at night, using soap and warm water lavishly, rinse with warm water and not with cold, as is the custom. Creams are picked up quickly when the flesh is glowing. Cold water is fine when you are about to use an astringent. All right for morning, not so good at night.

Remember that movements should be up. You can have a face lift every night before you go to bed. Guard against emotional stress during the day and it will stay lifted. Wrinkles are often the result of expressing irritation by frowning, pulling down the mouth corners, squinting the eyes. No good trying to rub lines out if you continue to dig them in.

Spread on an even film of the emollient. With flattened fingers stroke upward from chest to chin. There are large veins in the neck; frisk them a bit and they will carry nourishment to tissues that lack tone.

Sweep around the eyes in circles, starting at the inner side of the upper lid. Lift frown lines with thumb and finger; iron them. Place the finger tips of both hands on the forehead—one group facing the other—and do up and down movements. When the fingers of one hand ascend, the others descend; all the time both groups are traveling from temple to temple.

Finish with a brisk slapping, treating the entire facial surface.

New England Crullers.

2 eggs
1 teaspoon melted butter
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon or nutmeg
¾ cup milk
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder

Beat eggs until light and mix them with milk and melted butter. Sift flour, measure and sift again with flour, salt, spice and baking powder; add sugar and blend two mixtures. Roll out, cut into rings, or make into twists, and fry in hot fat until golden brown. Drain well and dust with sugar.

THEATERS

Air Thriller.

The flight of a Canadian bomber to England and its battle with a German Messerschmitt furnishes thrills in "Captain of the Clouds," the technicolor production starring James Cagney at the Ohio. Cagney plays the role of a Canadian pilot who usurps the credentials of one of his pals to make the trip and cover himself with glory. The action deals with a group of northwoodsmen who enlist in the air force after hearing Churchill's "We Shall Never Surrender Speech." The cast includes Brenda Marshall, Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale and Reginald Gardiner.

Gangland Drama.

Ex-gangsters turn the heat on the German Gestapo in the United States when the leader of an erstwhile gangland crew attempts to solve a murder to save his own skin in Humphrey Bogart's starring vehicle, "All Through the Night," at the Madison. Bogart plays the leader who is aided in rounding up the enemy aliens by a cafe singer intimidated by the enemy. Kaaren Verne plays the girl and Peter Lorre, Judith Anderson and Conrad Veidt are in the cast. Joe E. Brown in "Shut My Big Mouth," is the second picture.

Irene Dunne Starred.

Irene Dunne and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in "Unfinished Business," showing at the Ritz. Preston Foster is also featured. "Swamp Water," with Walter Brennan, Walter Huston, Anne Baxter and Dana Andrews is the second attraction.

Western Romance.

Gene Autry is starred in "Sierra Sue," western romance, topping the bill at the Park. "Moonlight In Hawaii," with Jane Frazee, Leon Errol and the Merry Macs is the second attraction.

CHAPTER X

On a night in December Judith left the store and, finding the cold invigorating, decided to walk home. Delicate snowflakes which heightened her growing interest in Christmas, two weeks away, lay lightly on her tailored black coat and boyish, felt hat.

Nothing had altered between Max and her. The heights were still the topmost heights and time had escaped with unaccountable swiftness. Two and one half months since Phyllis and Ames had been married and since she and Max had begun to weave the pattern of all those vivid memories that warmed her now. Those long Sunday drives through the burst of color that had been autumn; dinners at small, quaint places, wine and music and Max's voice and Max's laughter and Max's nearness. A polo game . . . a football game . . . a Sunday in Atlantic City when they had walked beside the sea until the wind had driven them to an intimate and beautiful place for something warm to drink.

How little it mattered what they had said! How much it mattered what they had felt. The knowing that she had been richly and exquisitely happy and that his need of her was as acute as hers for him.

Still when they were not together, their lives diverged, for he was reticent to speak of what he did apart from her and the people he saw. And though that reticence puzzled her, she respected it, she told herself, and bit back questions. She was not to realize until later that rather than respect for his reticence it was fear that his answer would lessen her happiness, tangle her thoughts and dim their future away. And so she lived only for the "next time" she was to see him.

He had not spoken of marriage, and she wondered often if it had ever occurred to him to marry her. And while she told herself, still with firmness, that she did not want to marry him and that theirs was the better way, her need of him so grew that living became a mere existence when she wasn't with him. On one or two occasions when he had forgotten his wallet and she had waited in the car for him to go up to his hotel room to get it, she had wondered about the room in which he lived and, remembering her father's dependence upon her mother, had wondered how Max, a man alone, managed to be so completely self-sufficient.

All the men she had known, the men in her family, depended upon women to make them comfortable and to remind them of things they forgot. Not so Max. More than once she was tempted to ask him who darned his socks.

Also she did not know whether she was flattered or whether she resented that in his attitude toward her who had never asked for protection, adoring, tender, and ardent. Always Max remembered the so-important "little things." But away from him when she was thinking of him, she wondered whether he realized how young, how unlived, he made her feel.

It was not that he did not regard her as an intellectual or emotional equal. He did, she knew. It was just that he regarded her quite obviously as someone who had not quite grown up and whose naivete and freshness amused him and stimulated him and increased his devotion. It was always Max who reminded her gently to dress warmly, to bring an umbrella, to get enough sleep.

Phyllis' marriage had not alienated her from her friends. Regularly she telephoned and met Judith and Emily for luncheon. The one dinner to which she had invited them—the steak was leathery, the potatoes burned — had not asked them again. Judith sensed in the recently-married Phyllis who slept until 10 a smug pity for her two friends who had to terminate luncheon within an hour to hurry back to their offices while she had a long free afternoon before her.

Ames' name punctuated her conversation like too many commas, and Judith had come to think that Ames was a more prosperous young man than she had believed, so beautifully was Phyllis dressed at all times and so carelessly did she spend his money.

Though Judith did not envy Phyllis' security, her leisure or her allowance, she suspected that Emily did, though there was nothing malicious in it. For apparently nothing had altered between Emily and Tim. Only Judith saw Emily pale in the morning after three hours' sleep, saw her worried look when the first of the month brought bills for dresses and hats and cosmetics, saw a look of desperation in her eyes replaced by a false radiance when Tim was present. But lovers they continued to be, joking, leaving a trail of laughter after them, talking long to each other over the telephone, their conversation candid and romantic and often absurd.

But Emily had never told him that she was spending more than she could afford for clothes and that the week she told him she must work at night she was actually suffering from a severe cold. She said to Judith, "Tim told me he'd never been ill a day in his life. I couldn't bear for him to see me like this. No, I don't want a doctor. I know what to do for myself . . ." And when Tim had come again, he had no doubt attributed the feverish color in Emily's cheeks either to rouge or to her excitement in seeing him.

In the two and one-half months Judith had been to her parents' home only once, and then had arrived late Saturday evening and had left the next afternoon. She had seen only her family, explaining rather lamely, she knew, that lack of time would not permit her to be with them on Thanksgiving, a holiday over which they always made much ado and one which heretofore she had always shared with them.

She had spent Thanksgiving with Max. That was the day Emily had met him for the first time and Max had been charming, though a little aloof and impatient to be going. But Max had said of Emily, "I like her, darling. You show your usual good sense in selecting a girl to live with you." And Emily had said of him, "He's fascinating, Judith."

She had made no plans for Christmas other than to buy gifts. No plans because Max seemed not to look beyond today and she was loath to question him. Of the approaching holiday he had said merely, "Nothing expensive for me, darling. I'll be furious if it is," and that had been all.

* * *

It was one of the many things she had come to know about him—that she must not interrogate him and that she must be ready on short notice to accept his decisions. Often she thought, not with resentment but with tenderness and amusement, "I always do what he wants me to do. I always fall in line with his wishes." Gently, she knew, but with undeniable firmness Max managed her.

Emily was preparing dinner in the kitchen.

"Max called," she said, turning away from the stove. "He said for you to call him as soon as you came in."

"I'll do it at once. I may not be in for dinner."

"Max?"

"Yes, dear. I'm coming up for you in half an hour."

"I'm happily surprised. I didn't expect to see you tonight."

"I didn't expect you would either."

She laughed. "You always do the most unexpected things."

Max laughed then. "Which never makes up a dull pair."

"It's snowing."

"In half an hour."

When Emily came in the bedroom, Judith said, "I'm having dinner with Max. If I'd known earlier, it would have saved you the trouble."

"It doesn't matter. I'll run your bath and help you dress while we get a few dates straightened out. About Christmas . . . I'm not going home. I can't afford it."

"But your family . . . You've always gone home, Emily. I'll—"

"You'll loan me the money. I knew you'd say that. But thanks, no. Will you wear your new black dress? Max likes you in black, doesn't he? Your wardrobe has gone into mourning since you've known him. Here's your robe."

"You'll be with Tim on Christmas then?"

Emily stood very still. "No Tim will be with his family and Jim and Lois Alexander are going to Jim's home in Kentucky. Christmas is only one day. Don't worry about me. I'm not going to make a fuss about it or feel sorry for myself."

"If I go home, you're going with me. You see, I don't know what Max is going to do."

Tempting New England Style Crullers

By BETTY NEWMAN

A cruller, according to Mr. Webster, "is a small, sweet cake made of rich egg batter, cut into rings, strips or twists, and fried in deep fat—losely, a fried cake." He neglected to say, however, that they are very good eating, but we'll sample them for ourselves.

Today's Menu.

Hamburg Steak with Onions
Carrots and Peas
Mashed Potatoes
Cabbage Salad
Crullers Coffee

Crullers.

¼ cup butter
1 cup suger
2 eggs
1 cup milk
About 3½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons all-phosphate baking podwer
½ teaspon grated nutmeg

Beat butter and sugar together; add beaten eggs and milk, then flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg sifted together. Roll out, cut, and fry golden brown in deep fat. Drain well and sprinkle with sugar.

'DEFINITELY LAST MESSAGE'
"I am leaving."
That message, at the end of a fragmentary but poignant dispatch telling of fearful air raids on Singapore during its last stand against the Japanese, was the last word received by the Associated Press from its staff reporter in Singapore, C. Yates McDaniel.
McDaniel was the last American reporter to remain in the city.
Instead of placing the routine time stug at the beginning of his message, McDaniel marked it "definitely last."
Born in China, McDaniel has spent much of his life in the Orient. This is the fourth time he has seen a great city fall to the Japanese. He was in Tientsin, Nanking and Hankow when they fell.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It's a very strange happenstance indeed is a tie basketball game. It's a rarity of the first water, and also of the second and third, and the water that flows under the bridge and over the dam.

But it happened last Friday night at the high school, 24 to 24, between the Mansfield and Massillon reserves, through a scorekeeper's error.

Actually the score was Mansfield 26, Massillon 24, but the scorekeeper missed a Mansfield bucket, by Bobby Baker, in the last quarter, and the books closed on a tie game, officially.

* * *

I'm not blaming the official scorekeeper a bit in this case. They turned the book over to a kid, who donated his services, and who had nothing but grief as the reward for his work.

The jobs of official scorekeeper and official timer can be just as important in a close game as those of the officials on the floor. In this case the game was played, and after it was over no one knew who won.

Scorekeepers' official checkup on personal fouls and number of individual substitutions also are highly important.

The jobs of keeping score and keeping time should be turned over to competent officials, and they should be paid, and should be held fully responsible for their work. You can't take an unpaid volunteer too severely to task.

* * *

I wouldn't keep score without being paid for the job. But don't get me wrong. I don't want this high school scoring job, and wouldn't take it except in case of dire emergency.

My first job is to cover the games for this newspaper, and I can do that much more efficiently by my own system of note jotting than I can with a scorebook.

No. I don't blame the kid for missing a bucket in that wild fourth quarter. When a game gets so exciting that the floor officials stand pop-eyed and watch a full minute of shoving, pushing, roll blocking, and even slugging, and fail to call a foul until a Massillon boy finally gets a strangle hold from the rear on a Mansfielder and bounces him on the floor, I don't blame the scorekeeper for becoming excited.

And when the crowd goes completely crazy, and strong men weep, and gentle ladies hurl imprecations at the referees, and the school principal comes down and hotly demands that the officials be tossed out, I don't blame the scorekeeping kid for missing a bucket.

And Coach Vere Smith really tore his hair.
Looking for the bucket that wasn't there.

25 State Clubs End Cage Year

Mount Union Tops List as Season Nears Close.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Twenty-five of Ohio's college basketball teams wind up their 1941-42 campaigns this week, leaving only 11 to participate in the nine contests closing the season next week.

The 36-game program ending Saturday should decide both the Ohio conference and state championships, with the defending king, Mount Union, favored to repeat in each.

* * *

The Mounts are far out front in the state-wide scrap with 15 wins, 16 starts. Capital holds second with 13 victories and a lone defeat. In the conference the same two teams are the top-notchers, being deadlocked with 11 wins and a single loss.

However, the schedule favors the present rulers, for the Mounts have two fairly easy games on tap, while the Lutherans have a single contest which might turn into an upset. Should both teams win their remaining contests, the titles would remain with the Mounts on a percentage basis, since they would have one more victory than the Lutherans.

A year ago the Mount Union squad was handed the two crowns in a silver platter as Muskingum swept Wooster from the heights in the season's grand finale. This year, however, Mount took care of the Woosters by a 57 to 40 count last week to step back into the top spot which the Scots had held.

Capital must dispose of Ohio Northern this week, a team which it had a tough time beating 67-64 previously. The Polar Bears have lost only two of 15 games. Mount Union meets Kenyon and Oberlin, neither with an impressive record.

* * *

The week's slate:

Monday: Ashland at Kent State, De Sales at Assumption, Rio Grande at Tiffin.

Tuesday: Bowling Green at Heidelberg, Wittenberg at Marietta, Muskingum at Findlay, Denison at Kenyon, Ohio Northern at Capital, Mount Union at Oberlin, Wayne at Akron, Wooster at Hiram, Bluffton at Tri-State, Rio Grande at De Sales, Xavier at Ohio U.

Wednesday: Muskingum at Otterbein, Miami at Cincinnati, Indiana Tech at Defiance, John Carroll at Western Reserve, Loyola at Toledo.

Friday: John Carroll at Marietta, Kenyon at Mount Union, Daytona t Marshall.

Saturday: Wisconsin at Ohio State, Baldwin Wallace at Case, Wooster at Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan at Wittenberg, Youngstown at Geneva, Kent State at Hiram, Dayton at Xavier, Defiance at Findlay, Kenyon at Fenn, Ohio U at Toledo.

MACK HOLDOUT EITHER SIGNS OR DOESN'T PLAY

ANAHEIM, Cal. — Dick Siebert, the Philadelphia Athletics' holdout first baseman, must play for the Mackmen or not at all.

"I couldn't trade him if I wanted to," Connie Mack asserted. "Sometime ago I sounded out another club but they didn't want him. Nobody else in the league is interested either."

GIANTS PRACTICE

MIAMI, Fla.—A team captained by Carl Hubbell defeated one led by Hal Schumacher, 2 to 1 in 10 innings, in the New York Giants' first training camp yesterday. Hubbell's infield was three-fourths lefthanded with Cliff Melton on first, Hubbell on second and Jesse Danna, former Louisiana State medical student, at shortstop.

Hogan Tops Golf Money Winners

NEW ORLEANS —(AP)— Lloyd Mangrum stands in second place among the leading money winners in the National professional golfers association this year, but he will need some more big winnings before he catches up with Ben Hogan, still far out in front.

Mangrum, who pocketed $1,000 yesterday by winning the New Orleans $5,000 open, now has a total of $3,108 but Hogan leads the field with $5,958, according to figures of Fred Corcoran, manager of the association.

Others in the big ten for the year are Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., $2,991; Lawson Little, San Francisco, $2,351; Chick Harbert, Battle Creek, Mich., $2,261; Byron Nelson, Toledo $2,174; Jimmy Thomson, $1,950; Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Franklin Makes Big Time Fight Bid In Cleveland

By LAWTON CARVER

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The pugilistic spotlight this week will not shine brightest in Madison Square Garden, as it generally does, but will be on in full glare instead at Cleveland. A bout out there tomorrow night may turn out to be the first step toward Joe Louis defending his heavyweight title against another Alabama boy.

* * *

This party is Lem Franklin, whose threatening gestures during the last year or so have begun to attract widespread attention. He gets his big test against Bob Pastor, who is not a great fighter himself, yet one who can and often does show up his supposed superiors.

In this particular instance, Pastor figures to be the favorite, I should imagine, and if Franklin can contrive to upset the perennial heavyweight contender he will bolt right into the middle of future plans for Louis. The fact that such a championship match would be waged between two colored boys would be a little out of the ordinary but not without precedent. Louis' fifth of 20 defenses was against John Henry Lewis, elderly, partially blind, over-stuffed former light heavyweight title holder, who was a native of the west.

This Lem Franklin party comes from Mobile. He has flattened a number of opponents, including the ample Abe Simon in five rounds, after Louis had required 13 to do the job on Simon, and that was the match that brought Lem to public notice—that and the airplane trip which Jack Hurley made here to hurl defiance at Louis and challenges left and right in behalf of Lem.

Hurley, wily manager, persuasive salesman and extremely nice gent that he is, still couldn't get anywhere around here at the time and the result is the Pastor match in which he is gambling it all. The guys Franklin laundered in his other matches didn't mean much around here, not even Abe Simon, but Pastor is regarded as a stout, thorough workman and this one will attract notices as big as bill boards. If Franklin wins——

This big party from Mobile stands six-two and fights at around 200 and won't be 26 years old for a couple of months yet. In 10 starts last year he belted out nine opponents and took a decision. None of which makes him a great fighter or a capable opponent for Louis, but if he can add Pastor to that list and perhaps another name or two, with attendant ballyhoo, he will be right up there. Belting out Pastor, or winning decisively from the under-sized New York heavyweight, might clinch the shot for him for all I know, and bring on an Alabama night in some arena.

In the meantime, this should be remembered about Pastor: (1) He can take a punch: (2) He will get up off the floor if able; (3) He makes his best fights outside of New York; (4) If he feels like going all out he is liable to beat anybody, except Louis himself. Further details will be provided tomorrow night at Cleveland.

Artist Also Coaches Champs

Jack Cody with Brenda Helser.

By GORDON G. MACNAB
By Wide World Features

PORTLAND, Ore.—If you can tear Jack Cody's tongue from talk of the pictures he has painted and the flowers he tends daily, he'll tell you about the champion swimmers and divers he has produced.

The tale will start back some 30 years to the fabulous Norman Ross, then come down to the present and the "Cody Kids," four winsome youngsters who apparently have only started smashing tank records.

"You know one of my oils took a blue ribbon at the Washington county fair this fall," Cody begins. "It was . . ."

But about his swimming champions:

In the days of Duke Kahanamoku and before the time of Johnny Weissmuller, Ross rode the pools for a world's record at nearly a dozen distances. Cody taught him to swim: sent him surging up and down a little 20 by 60 foot tank at Portland's Multnomah Athletic Club and quickly saw in him a potential champion.

Cody sent Ross to the Olympic club at San Francisco whence he went on to win recognition as the world's greatest swimmer.

But stocky, sun-reddened Jack Cody, now in his 29th year as Multnomah coach, didn't stop with that one blue chip.

He developed a group of divers that for several years topped the nation's best from the springboard. In 1917, Constance Meyers, Helen Hicks and Thelma Paine swept the AAU fancy diving event for the Multnomah club, one, two, three.

Louis E. Kuehn won the 1920 Olympics diving championship, Louis E Balbach was third and Miss Paine was third in the women's event. Ross turned in two first-place swim performances and was on the winning relay team. Cody's next Olympic team member was Dave Fall, a 1924 diving ace.

Little Nancy Merki, infantile paralysis sufferer, now holds the world's records at 200 meters and American records at 200, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters. She's 15.

Beauteous Brenda Helser, American titlist at 100 meters and 110 yards, holds American indoor marks at 200 meters and 220 yards. Two tentative Hollywood offers are now before her.

Suzanne Zimmerman, at 15, has beaten both Brenda and Nancy in sprints. "She may, some time, be the country's best," says Cody.

Could Decide Big 10 Today

Indiana Loss Would Give Race Crown To Illini.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Big Ten basketball title discussions could be brought to an almost conclusive close tonight by an Illinois victory over Wisconsin and an Indiana loss to Iowa.

Illinois has won 10 of its 11 games. Indiana, riding the crest of a six-game winning streak, has taken eight of 11. The Illini need only two more triumphs for an assured share of the title, even if Indiana should win all of its four remaining encounters. A Hoosier loss would permit Illinois to take the undisputed title, even if it lost two of the four remaining contests.

Standing in the way of Hoosier hopes tonight is an Iowa team that has lost only one conference game at home this season—that to Minnesota by two points.

* * *

Wisconsin's last longings for a share of the title the Badgers won a year ago will meet the test tonight at Champaign. The Badgers kept their place in the first division Saturday by vanquishing Northwestern, 59 to 47, in a ding-dong battle.

* * *

Illinois had little trouble in disposing of Ohio State, 48 to 31. Max Gecowets, fifth high scorer in the league before the game, was on the bench but did not play. No explanation was offered for his failure to get into the engagement.

* * *

Purdue's seventh win of the season, by a 51 to 27 score, was just the 13th Big Ten loss of the season and 29th consecutive league defeat for Chicago. Tonight the Boilermakers engage the seventh-place Wildcats at Evanston. The Maroons may have their best opportunity of the season to break the string when they face Michigan, which has won only three of 12 games this season.

Minnesota trounced the touring Great Lakes Naval Training station five 47 to 39 Saturday night.

Dayton Woman Leads Tourney

Mansfield Moose Take First In Class 'D'.

LIMA—(INS)—Ruth Troy of Dayton led the Ohio State Women's Bowling tournament today by rolling up a score of 594 to top the previous high of 573, bowled by Alice Moore of Cleveland.

Clouting the pins for 585 in the doubles and 476 in team competition, Ruth Troy copped the all-events leadership with a total score of 1665. Martha Merrill of Columbus was the previous all-event scorer with a total of 1640.

The Colso team from Columbus put together a 2534 to displace another Capital City quintet, Myers Morticians, in the Class A team event. Myers remained in second with a mark of 2460, followed by the Charles Sucher Packing Co., team, Dayton entry, which was third with 2440

In Class D, the Moose women of Mansfield, reigned as new leaders with 1919, replacing Colonial Plan of Lima, which scored 1886.

* * *

Ethel Richard and Grace Hatch of Cleveland held the doubles lead again with 1107. Canton's Hoovers led Class B with 2332, followed by Driggo Dairy Farms of Toledo with 2271. City Loan of Steubenville followed with 2204.

Barons Tied For Second

Best Hornets as Lions Trim Hershey Pucksters.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland Barons are tied again for first place in the Western division of the American hockey league today after they savagely beat back the Pittsburgh Hornets 5 to 3 at the arena last night and received an assist from the Washington Lions who dumped Hershey.

* * *

The victory was due in part to Bill Beveridge's excellent net tending, Rookie Stan Smith's two goals, and fast offensive action in the closing minutes of the game.

* * *

A fist fight between Cleveland Leftwinger Norm Locking and Hornet Rookie Defenseman Ross Knipfel put them both in the penalty box for five minutes in the last period.

Hershey and Cleveland are tied for the No. 1 position while Indianapolis is one point behind in second place. The Caps lost last night to the New Haven Eagles.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Clevelander Wins Shoot

Two Galion Women Place High In Ohio Rifle Tilt.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Roy Flowers of Cleveland won the Ohio Indoor Rifle championship but an Ohio State university co-ed stole the show with a possible world record display of marksmanship in week-end firing at the Olentangy village range here.

The keen-eyed co-ed is Helen Jenkins of Columbus who recorded 70 consecutive bullseyes in a special women's event. She tied Hazel Webb of Columbus with perfect 200's on the first two cards and in the shootoff, Miss Jenkins ran up her remarkable score. Miss Webb dropped the 15th shot in the run off.

Flowers scored 591 to take the championship from Mrs. Dorothea Kelly of Akron. Earl Rinck of Dayton was second with 588 and Lloyd Bender of Galion, third with 587.

The women's title went to 16-year-old Jean Brewbaker of Akron, who fired 284. Mrs. C. Fleidered and Mrs. W. Rinehart, both of Galion, had 278 and 277, respectively.

George Washburn of Columbus got 12 bullseyes in a shootoff to win the Tewes trophy match. R. S. Carrouthers of New Philadelphia had 10 bullseyes and Verne Lessel of Springfield two in extra firing. All scored perfect 300's in the regular match.

Bob Carper, 16, of Toledo, won the junior championship.

The Columbus Rifle and Revolver club won the Ohio junior team event with 1,468. Canton's entry was second with 1,446.

America FIGHTS FOR PEACE!

AMERICA has devoted her energies to the arts of peace—advanced education—improved public health—wrought miracles in mass production—developed the highest standards of living the world has known. But Pearl Harbor has changed this—for a time. Our day of peaceful pursuit yields to our day of necessity. When America knows she must fight to keep her heritage of peace and freedom—then America fights.

America will win because the heart of mankind is on our side. To all people everywhere, who share our ideals, America brings HOPE—a mounting tide of hope that gathers force to help us sweep aggressors from the earth. That hope is our trust. Every American citizen is a "soldier" for our common cause—our fight for peace.

Now is the time to "give"; now is the time to "sacrifice". Our heritage was born of hardship and of courage. That heritage shall be preserved, whatever the hardship—by the same courage. The sun of peace will rise again. Rise on a better world. We'll have to make it better, that peace may be permanent. To this fight—to the coming peace—America dedicates her all.

COMES IN BUNCHES

RENO, Nev. — (U.P.) — The year started badly for the Chester Mayfield family. First, Chester, jr., tried out his new skates and broke an arm. Chester, sr., had an automobile accident on the icy streets and suffered bruised knees and a sprained back. After that Mrs. Mayfield slipped while getting out of the bathtub and broke a toe.

SOLVE MYSTERY

Lake's 'Ghost' Nothing More Than a Bittern.

GRAYLING, Mich — (U.P.) — The mysterious "ghosts" of Crawford county's Shupac Lake has proved to be nothing more mysterious than a long legged marsh bird going through its exercises.

For some years local residents have reported hearing a strange noise over the lake's shores at night. Some said it was the ghost of an Indian; others, more scientific, said that it was made through suction from an underground channel when the wind was of a certain velocity and the water at a particular level.

Lew Dorman, Grayling Conservation officer, however, had sat around too many cracker barrels to believe the suction story and the hint of a ghost didn't deter him from investigating.

He found that the noise was made by a bittern, a long legged bird bobbing its head up and down as it extended its neck in convulsive jerks to make the sounds that some had believed came from a ghost.

The first saw mills in the United States were located in Jamestown, Va., and Berwick, Me., in 1625 and 1631, respectively.

YOUNG FLIERS FERRY PLANES FOR TRAINING

U. S. Army Pilots Learn To Handle Bombers Being Sent To Britain.

(By United Press)

LONG BEACH, Cal.—The most unheralded groups of Americans aiding the democratic cause today are the squadrons of youthful United States Army Air Corps pilots who fly speedy, gray-green warplanes from American aircraft factories to Allied airfields.

Every day hundreds of young army fliers man the four-engined bombers, attack planes, trainers and fighters manufactured in Southern California and fly them to northern Canada bases or "installation stations" on the eastern seaboard.

One of the major links in this supply chain is the Western Division Air Corps Ferrying Command based at the Long Beach Municipal Airport. Members of this branch of the newly-organized Ferry Command have the assignment of getting American-made planes into the hands of both the British and Canadian air forces in the shortest possible time.

The men chosen to pilot these planes across the country are graduates of Air Corps schools throughout the nation and many of them have no more than 250 hours in the air. Yet they are hand-picked fliers, chosen by the army for their ability.

Before these young wingmen, most of whom are brand new commissioned officers, are allowed to handle the controls of the warcraft bound for Britain they must have 10 weeks of intensive training on multiple-engined planes. They then fly, first, as co-pilots and, after several flights, are checked out on trial runs. If successful they are classed as "First Pilots" and are permitted to fly the tricky little Curtiss P-40's, the huge Consolidated Liberators and the Lockheed-Hudsons destined for overseas war duty.

Presiding over the rapidly expanding Western Division is veteran Lieut. Col. Raphael Baez, jr., a level-headed army pilot who joined the air corps in 1917. He is the man who controls the hundreds of daily flights from the Long Beach field. He is assisted by 25 staff officers as well as the countless men who fly the ships.

Explaining the reason for the use of young commissioned officers in the Ferry Command, Col. Baez said that, not only are these men competent fliers but they also receive valuable training in the handling of complicated warplanes of all types.

The ferry pilots serve four months before returning to their squadrons at the various army bases. They are then replaced in the ferrying service by other young pilots.

The ships ferried to Canadian and British points come from all West Coast plants turning out planes for the democracies. Some are delivered to the Ferry Command field by company pilots, while others are picked up at the plants by army fliers. After the pilots complete their ferrying jobs, they return to Long Beach on commercial airliners and start all over again.

Historic Drum Still In Use After Five Wars

SAN FRANCISCO — (U.P.) — A drum whose rolling beat helped inspire George Washington's frostbitten forces at Valley Forge is still being used here by Charles J. Bessette, a recent arrival in San Francisco.

The instrument has been through four wars since the American revolution. Bessette once used it in recital at Carnegie hall. The drum is insured for $5,000 by the Smithsonian Institution, which will inherit it when Bessette dies.

According to Bessette, the drum was one of 90 ordered by Gen. Washington from a cabinet-maker in Flushing, L. I., during the revolution. A fire destroyed all but nine of them. Bessette's is the only one still in use. The others are in museums and private collections.

"It came into my family in 1848, during the Mexican war, when it was given to my grandfather's uncle," Bessette said. "My grandfather, Tommy Bessette, carried it in the Civil war, and my father, Mose, took it through the Spanish-American war.

"My father drummed on it for 28 years with Sousa, and when the World war came along he gave it to me and I took it to France with the 'Fighting 69th'."

NO MORE DOVES FOR MAGICIANS

VICHY — (U.P.) — Magicians and prestidigitators have been hard hit and most have been put out of business by food restrictions. Gone are the doves or white rabbits that they pulled out of hats; they have gone the road of the casserole.

Gone also are the eggs which magicians once broke into their hats. Gone also are the brilliantly colored silk scarves. Gone also are the gold coins they slipped through their fingers or caused to disappear up their sleeves.

Rationing and restrictions have killed magic and magicians meeting in Paris founded a mutual aid association to help each other out until doves and rabbits come back.

CUPID FINALLY WINS DECISION

MOFFETT FIELD, Cal—(U.P.)—Staff Sgt. James F. Martin and his new bride had a tough time, but they never gave up.

The young couple drove to Reno for the wedding ceremony, but arrived only after surmounting a number of obstacles.

First, they lost a purse containing the wedding ring and the sergeant's pass from the field. Next, a connecting rod burned out and delayed them. A flat tire followed.

When they arrived in Reno, it was too late to obtain a license. The marriage took place the next day, with a borrowed wedding ring.

The return trip was better—only four flat tires.

5 INJURED IN TWO-CAR CRASH

Mansfield Area Escapes Traffic Fatalities, But State Toll For Week-End's 14.

Fellenbaum, Crestline, and Ben Fellenbaum, Galion, received cuts and bruises about the knees.

An ambulance, a police cruiser and the fire apparatus all rushed to or past the scene of a minor accident in the city this morning The fire engine was answering an alarm but the cruiser was called to investigate the report of a man being struck by a car. They found Albert Lee, 54, of 113 Elm street, who suffered minor bruises when he fell while attempting to avoid being struck by an automobile at the intersection of Fourth and Walnut streets.

Police reported the right side of the windshield of the car was frosted over, and that the driver said he did not see the pedestrian

Lee was taken to a doctor's office and then home in Jones' ambulance.

Ralph Calhoun, 30, 832 West Main street, Ashland, suffered a lacerated left knee and cut on his lower lip when a car he was driving collided with a semi-trailer truck driven by Gilbert J. Maurer, 39, Dover R. D. 1, on U. S. Route 42, a half mile north east of Mansfield at 1 a. m. yesterday.

Taken to General hospital for treatment, he told state highway patrolmen that he may have fallen asleep just prior to the accident.

Two triple-death accidents helped to boost Ohio's toll of week-end traffic fatalities to 14.

An automobile whose driver apparently fell asleep killed two girls and a boy at Wheelersburg, near Portsmouth. They were Opal Crislip, 18, of Fullerton, Ky., and Clinton Stapleton, 11, and Betty Craft, 10, all of Wheelersburg, all cousins.

Sheriff Earl Brandel of Scioto county charged Wilford H. Pilch, 29, of Pedro (Lawrence county) with manslaughter after he was traced through an automobile license plate found at the accident scene. Brandel said Pilch failed to stop.

An automobile struck a parked truck at Tiffin, killing Andrew Sylvester, 24, a butcher, his wife, Fannie, 24, and Mrs. Francis P. Roller, 28

Four were killed in three separate Akron accidents. Donald Dixon, 19, and his bride of six weeks, Betty, 19, died when their machine hit a utility pole. Dominik Parisi, 47, a pedestrian, was hit by a car, and John Mancine, 30, was crushed to death under his truck The deaths boosted Akron's toll to 10, seven more than for the same 1941 period.

PATROL CITES 6

Five Waive Arraignment on Charges of Speeding.

Six out-of-town motorists were arrested over the week-end by state highway patrolmen on charges of speeding on U. S Route 42 near Mansfield.

Five of the six posted $16 30 bond and waived appearance in municipal court. The sixth, Anthony C Aman, Akron, driver for the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, was given a summons to appear in municipal court Wednesday at 1:30 p m.

Those posting bonds were Edward L. Milne and L V. Gray of Akron, Morris Gluckman, Cleveland Heights; and George Baker and George Young, both of Cleveland.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

MORE FREEDOM SEEN FOR INDIA

Churchill Makes Sweeping Reorganization of British Cabinet.

affect the newly streamlined war cabinet, in which Sir Stafford Cripps, former British ambassador to Moscow, became a key figure as Lord Privy Seal and leader of the house of commons.

In the new set-up, however, Viscount Cranborne, a former parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, replaces Lord Moyne as leader of the house of lords.

Churchill is to deliver a report on the government reshuffle to the house of commons at its next sitting, probably later this week. The speech will precede a two-day debate on the war situation.

The latest changes were regarded as Churchill's reply to public demands that he get rid of ministers who have been criticized as "failures." Some papers, however, argued that Churchill's house-cleaning measures had not gone far enough.

Newspaper opinion was divided over the new cabinet alterations.

The London Daily Express commented that Churchill had made "bold concessions to end the internal war raging in Britain on how it should fight the external war" and called on the nation to give the "new team fullest support."

The Daily Mail said the effects of Grigg's appointment "will be watched with great interest." But for the rest, said the Mail, "it cannot be said the ministers who have arrived present any improvement over the ministers who have departed."

The forecast of greater self-rule for India was predicted on belief the government will seek to obtain from India's leaders and people greater collaboration in prosecuting the war.

The London News Chronicle commented that only extension of considerable autonomous rights to India's people would answer the appeal of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek that India be granted "real political power"

Authoritative London comment predicted a possible dramatic British offer to both the Hindu majority and Moslem minority in India, possibly involving some compromise to resolve their differences in a united front against the Axis.
